County Lost $207,500 By Failure of Assessors

Of This $43,600 was Lost in Last Year, State Tax Commissioner Graves Tells Supervisors and Assessors — Shows Folly of Low Assessments in Address at Annual Conference.

"By your failure to assess property at full value as the law requires, cities, towns and villages in Ulster county lost $207,300 in the last five years, of which $43,600 were lost in the last twelve months," Mark Graves, state tax commissioner, told a conference of supervisors and assessors at Kingston today. "The law requires that property shall be assessed at full or market value" he continued, "not at fifty, sixty, seventy or eighty per cent of value. Just as long as you continue the illegal under-assessment plan, the loss to your cities, towns and villages from the distribution of income tax moneys will grow. The question is, has it been worth $207,300 in the last five years, and was it worth $43,600 last year to the taxpayers of this county to have their property under-assessed? No state tax is avoided or saved by under-assessments. The State Board of Equalization attends to that. Last year this county was assessed at $48,800,000, but it paid state taxes on $75,700,000. You escape no part of the county tax by keeping your assessments down—at least you do not if the county equalization is properly prepared."

"Tangible personal property owned by taxpayers other than business corporations should generally be assessed, with allowance made for just debts," he continued. Much of the burden on real property is due to the failure to tax personal property. When people of moderate means or the wealthy are relieved of tax on personality, the burden is shifted to real property and hits the farmer and the home-owner unduly hard."

The personal tax situation in Ulster county is nothing short of amazing. Imagine the assessors reporting only $174,000 in tangible personal property in a county with nearly $47,000,000 assessment of real property, but that is no more amazing than a report that no tangible personal property could be found in ten towns of Ulster county, and among them such towns as Esopus, Lloyd, Marlborough, New Paltz, Shawangunk and Wawarsing, all communities of substantial size.

"No public official has more important duties to perform than has the local assessor. Equality of taxation cannot obtain unless equality of assessment prevails. The assessment-roll is the foundation upon which the entire general property tax structure rests and if poor workmanship enters into the preparation of the assessment-roll, the structure is defective. Accurate valuation is necessary; guess-work assessments are unsatisfactory. The law gives the assessor a measuring-stick—full value—as his rule and guide, and no other should be used."

"Property taxes are very high. They have been increasing rapidly and unless you practice economy they will go higher. The real reason is that local expenses have grown enormously. The increase in state taxes is more apparent than real. This is so because the state gives the localities so much of the taxes it collects, and then from the share which the state retains it makes substantial gifts to the localities for school and highway purposes."

"For instance, the direct state tax in Ulster county last year was $114,000 and in return the state gave Ulster staxes amounting to $146,200, as follows:

Two-thirds personal income tax	$49,100
One-half mortgage tax	14,100
One-third corporation tax	27,600
One-quarter motor vehicle fees	55,400

And then, in addition, the state gave Ulster county $527,100 for schools and highways, as follows:

Public school funds	$251,500
State and county highway funds	168,500
Town highway funds	51,700
County road funds	55,100

"To reduce taxes—or, in fact, to keep them from going higher—means that strict economy must be practiced in school districts, villages, towns, cities and finally by your county."

The commissioner advised the assessors to scrutinize all exemption claims closely and see that each is authorized before it is allowed. "Exemptions are not unadulterated blessings," he said. "If a given property is exempted, the tax it should pay is shifted to the shoulders of other taxpayers."

Speaking on the subject of equalization, Commissioner Graves said: "The purpose of the county equalization table is to secure equality of taxation for state and county purposes between the taxpayers of the various tax districts of the county. For years, in some counties the equalization table has been juggled. More crimes against equality of taxation have been committed through the equalization table than in any other manner. While I dislike saying so, nevertheless, frankness of speech impels me to say to you that your equalization table of last year did not equalize. At least this is so if our information concerning rates of assessment in this county are at all correct. Your rates range from four per cent to twenty-five per cent higher than we think they should be. Taxpayers in New Paltz, Olive, Shawangunk, Esopus, Hurley, Saugerties, Marbletown and Kingston city were required to pay in the last few months many thousands of dollars of state and county taxes which should have been paid by taxpayers of Hardenbergh, Marlborough, Plattekill, Rosendale, Shandaken, Ulster, Wawarsing, Woodstock and Lloyd. Denning, Gardiner, Kingston and Rochester towns were on the margin. It is doubtful if they either profited or lost.

"What you urgently need in the future is true equalization. The taxpayers in the towns which I have named which profited most are honest. They no more desire to have the taxpayers or other towns pay their taxes than they would wish to have them pay any of their other debts. The tax commission stands ready and willing to assist you in any way in preparing a fair equalization table. If you think our rates are wrong, we seek your assistance and cooperation in making them right."

The meeting, which was held at the court house, was largely attended. Commissioner Graves was accompanied by Deputy Commissioner Daniel R. Spratt, in charge of the local assessments bureau of the tax commission, Charles H. Snyder, special agent of the commission, and James B. Wallace, publicity director.

NEW "LONE WOLF" PAYS BOSTON A VISIT.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Mass., April 29.—Women of the Roxbury district of Boston were terrified today as the result of the visit to this city of a new "lone wolf."

Police were searching for the bandit who tied Mrs. Edith Goldberg, 25, of Shawmut avenue, to her bed just as James E. Walters, the Walters, the "lone wolf" now in state's prison gagged and tied his victims. Mrs. Goldberg was found by her husband.

She told the police that a man entered her apartment saying:

"I've been waiting to get you for months." After gagging her with a towel, the new "lone wolf" tied her to the bed. She became unconscious and was found in that condition by her husband. Mrs. Goldberg furnished the police with a good description of the man. She said she had never seen him before.

Governor Smith has been appealed to by attorneys for the condemned men to stay the execution. The three were convicted of the murder of two bank messengers in Brooklyn during a hold up.

"We are going ahead with our plans for electrocution of the three men," the warden said.

Taxes Paid Unconsciously, Says Mr. Graves

State Tax Commissioner Tells Rotary Club of Open and Concealed Taxation and How Taxes are Extracted From the People.

State Tax Commissioner Mark Graves, a member of the Albany Rotary Club was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Kingston Rotary Club today. Among other things Mr. Graves said:

"You Kingston people pay $2,700,000 in taxes, direct or indirect, or through other revenue for the support of the federal, state, and local governments. If Kingston is an average city and President Coolidge was correct when he told Congress in his last annual message that the cost of government is at the rate of $100 per year per person. That is an astonishingly large sum to take from the pockets of the taxpayers of a city of this size, and I wonder if you have ever stopped to think how it is taken and for what purposes.

"Direct property taxes of $60,000 for the state, $150,000 for the county, and $750,000 for city and school purposes are approximately the amounts collected. In addition, other taxes and license fees, etcetera, amounting to something like $240,000 a year are exacted by the state and city. These include personal and corporate income taxes, automobile registration fees and the like. But this leaves $1,500,000 to be accounted for by taxes collected by the federal government and taxes paid indirectly and unconsciously by every person who buys anything or spends money.

"Have you tried to calculate or figure out which portion of this burden you pay? One of the greatest sports in legislative halls is that of enacting soak-the-rich tax laws. Such bills usually do soak the rich, but they also oppress and sweat the poor.

"In his message, President Coolidge correctly summarized the situation when he said, 'No system has been devised under which any person living in this country could escape being affected by the cost of our government.'

"Briefly, I will tell you how you are paying some taxes unconsciously: Take your automobile, for instance. Do you realize that when you bought it you paid the manufacturer's price plus a five per cent tax which he paid to the federal government, and that whenever you buy parts or accessories for it you pay the natural price for them plus two and one half per cent? Did you ever stop to think that in arriving at his list price, the manufacturer added in his tax bill? Economists tell us that on the average the commodities which you and I purchase pass through five hands before they reach ours. Just think for a moment if you will, what is the natural thing for the manufacturer, the wholesaler, the jobber and the retailer to do. Will not each add his taxes into the cost of doing business and pass them on to you and me? Of course, he will, unless competition in his particular line happens to be so severe that he cannot do so.

"I wish I might tell you the amount of taxes you pay when you purchase a pair of shoes, or a suit of clothes, but that I cannot do. Some items are, however, available. For instance, we know the federal taxes on tobacco, cigars and cigarettes amount to $2.81 per person per year. Assuming that Kingstonians use no more and no less on the average than do residents of the country in general, we know that the government collects in your city around $75,800, which we pay as and when we buy tobacco and tobacco products.

"Again, the railroads of the country are paying this year at the rate of one million dollars a day in taxes —$366,000,000 for the year. The railroads must obtain the funds with which they pay taxes from those who ride on their trains, or ship freight or express over their lines. This railroad tax amounts to $2.75 per person. Applied to your population, it means that we pay another $75,000 of taxes when we buy tickets to ride on trains or pay freight bills or purchase commodities shipped into Albany by rail.

"High taxes increase the cost of living and make taxpayers of all of us. Around one-tenth of the national income goes to pay taxes. If you pay no less and no more than the average, you contribute directly or indirectly one-tenth of your income for the support of government.

"A serious aspect of the situation is that local taxes are increasing rapidly. Between 1918 and 1923, the cost of your city government increased from $470,000 to $757,000, an increase of $287,000.

"Let us analyze this, and see for what purposes your city is spending more money. This $287,000 is made up as follows:

Education	$125,000
Streets and highways	67,000
Police and fire (public safety)	39,000
Sewers and sanitation	32,000
Health	6,000
Interest	5,000
All other	13,000
Increase	$287,000

"It is important that a group of representative men, such as the Rotarians of Kingston, should take an interest in local affairs. Kingston spends yearly for current, capital and redemption of bond purposes around one million dollars. That is a sizeable business, and it is your business. You should analyze the financial statements of your city as you do the financal statements of your own business, and see if city funds are being wisely spent and if the increases for the various purposes of government are justified. And before you criticize, you should be in a position to place your finger on a given line of expenditures, and point out why more is being spent for that purpose than the city can afford. Always keep in mind that the quality of your local government will be no better and no worse than the average citizen requires. If you take an interest in these things, your officials will take an interest. To use a slang phrase, whether your city government is good or bad, efficient or inefficient, economical or extravagant, is up to you.

Railroad Does Not Favor Sterling Street Tunnel

States it Would Cost $150,000 Which Might Be Better Applied to Broadway—City Engineer Holds Fast to Lower Figure—City to Petition Public Service Commission.

The proposed South Sterling street tunnel under the West Shore railroad tracks would cost $150,000 to construct, according to J. G. Brennan, engineer of grade crossings of the New York Central, and he advised that the money might better be applied to the Broadway crossing elimination. That fact was brought out Tuesday evening at the meeting of the board of public works when a letter was read from Mr. Brennan. City Engineer John F. Hallinan, however, does not agree with Mr. Brennan's estimate and stated that it would not cover over $70,000 to construct the tunnel.

Mr. Brennan's letter read: "I have your letter of April 8, inquiring as to what action has been taken on the South Sterling street grade crossing elimination. We have looked into the matter to the extent that a subway would cost approximately $150,000 and feel that this money could be spent to much better advantage on Broadway."

Asked Brennan to Reconsider.

City Engineer John F. Hallinan stated that he had met Mr. Brennan in Kingston shortly after the letter had been received and had taken the matter up with him again and Mr. Brennan had stated that the railroad was opposed to spending any money on the proposed tunnel but he had prevailed on Mr. Brennan to reconsider the matter and look over the plans again.

"The railroad does not realize that the war is over and that the cost of labor and materials is much less than it was four years ago," said City Engineer Hallinan. In reply to questions by the board he stated that he believed that the tunnel could be constructed at a cost of between $60,000 and $70,000, which was the figure he had submitted to the board some time ago when the board had asked him to make an estimate as to the probable cost of the proposed tunnel.

R. R. Does Not Favor City.

Mayor Morris Block said that it was evident that the West Shore railroad did not consider the welfare of the city and suggested that the board adopt a resolution directing the chief of police to station an officer at the Broadway crossing with instructions to make arrests when the crossing was blocked to traffic for a longer period than the state law allowed, which is for a period not to exceed five minutes.

Jenkins Suggests Plan.

Judge Jenkins said that from an engineering standpoint the plan of tunnelling South Sterling street was feasible and that it would divert considerable traffic from Broadway. He said that he would suggest that the board lay out the proposed new street over the railroad tracks at Sterling street, and then petition the public service commission to eliminate the grade crossing. If the public service commission favored the elimination of the grade crossing at that point it would enter an order to that effect and the cost of constructing the tunnel would be borne by both city and railroad, each paying half of the cost of construction.

Board Adopts Plan.

The board thought that the suggested plan was a good one and directed the corporation counsel to make an application to the public service commission for the right to open South Sterling street and eliminate the grade crossing.

Other matters taken up will be found elsewhere.

Maneuvers of Hawaii May 1

Work of the Critique of Great Mimic Battle Being Prepared—Results of Air Attack Extremely Damaging and Causing Great Loss of Life.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Honolulu, April 29.—A grand critique of the Hawaiian army-navy maneuvers will be held here starting May 1 and continuing for five days, it was announced today.

The umpires are busily engaged receiving reports of the great mimic battle and preparing for the work of the critique.

Meantime, discussion of the fight was at its height with interest in airplane activities the outstanding feature.

That planes proved the most effective weapon for both the attacking "blues" and the defending "blacks" was the opinion of many. The value of airplanes in scouting, reconnaissance, protecting landings and in bombing was demonstrated by both sides, it was declared.

The maneuvers were marked by many air skirmishes but official results, except in a few instances, have not yet been received by the chief umpires.

The critique was expected to bring out the result of air attack by the "black" forces defending Cahu Island, which was attacked by the invading "blues." Results of the air attack were claimed to have been extremely damaging and causing great loss of life.

Reports of the maneuvers today showed that when patrol planes of the defending forces discovered part of the "enemy," of blue fleet, anchored in Molokai channel, contact was established and the giant manuevers opened.

Later the "blue" tried to land and capture the flying base. Black patrol planes resisted the "blue" attack claimed to have sunk enemy craft carrying men to shore.

The first day of the maneuvers the defending bombers encountered the enemy's destroyer Lawrence off Diamond Head. The attack was unsuccessful. Later the bombers attacked the blue submarine S29.

The blue forces completed landing operations the second day of the battle, and held landing holds on Molokai and Lanai islands.

Intense aerial activity over all Oahu Island marked the second day of the maneuvers.

England Made A Forward Step

Toward Stabilization of the World Commercially and Financially According to Administration Officials —Stimulant To American Trade Abroad.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 29.—No single development abroad in months has aroused so much enthusiasm in Washington as Great Britain's decision to return to the gold standard. Without exception, administration officials hailed it today as a great ofrward step toward stabilization of the world, commercially and financially.

The treasury declared the decision to be the most significant and important reconstruction step since the adoption of the Dawes plan.

The department of commerce heralded it as an enormous stimulant to American trade abroad, and experts predicted that foreign commerce, already at a satisfactory stage, will boom to still higher figures.

The state department was gratified because, with the United States and Great Britain once more on a financial parity, it was felt that it cannot fail to have a beneficial effect in diplomatic matters.

American firms fighting for world trade no longer will have to compete against low priced nd fluctuating British pounds in the world's trading centers, it was pointed out. And with Britain's example flaunting itself before the rest of the world, the confident expectation prevails in Washington that other countries will follow in her footsteps as soon as possible. Holland has already signified her intention of following the British example.

The chief obstacle that American business has had to overcome since the war has been the demoralization of foreign exchange. Violent fluctuations, yielding to every political wind blowing in Europe, has made the export and import business a hazardous and uncertain procedure —"unsettled" the exports call it. Stability will replace this uncertainty now wherever the British pound sterling and the American dollar compete, particularly in the far east and in South America, where the most sanguinary business conflicts are being staged.

The confidence that the American government feels in British financial stability is exemplified in the $500,000,000 credit established in New York for the British government. Of this huge amount, the greatest peace time credit in the world's history, a third will be handled by the firm of J. P. Morgan, fiscal agents for the empire during the war, and two-thirds by the federal reserve bank.

$176,000 Hotel Contract Awarded W. E. Joyce Co.

Local Firm Successful Bidder on Contract Covering Half the Cost of Building The Governor Clinton Hotel—Work to be Completed By January 1—John Krusher Given Electrical Contract.

Contracts aggregating $185,000 and covering more than 50 per cent of the cost of constructing The Governor Clinton Hotel were entered into on Tuesday by the directors of the Kingston Community Hotel Corporation.

The contract for the foundation, masonry, joist, floor and roof, plastering, carpentry and erection of structural steel was awarded the W. E. Joyce Co., Inc., of this city at $176,000 and was signed and executed by President Herbert Carl of the Hotel Company and Vice President Michael Bebarfald of the W. E. Joyce Company.

Work may begin May 1, although it is the expectation that it will not begin until about May 25, as it will take that time to get the materials on the ground, and the contract is to be completed by January 1, next.

The contract for the electrical work was awarded to John Krusher of Albany avenue extension at $9,000.

Other contracts were discussed, tentative decisions arrived at in several cases, and the J. G. White Company's representative, Mr. Moore, given authority to close some of the smaller ones, on certain conditions being met.

The price given in the Joyce contract is subject to comparatively slight modification, depending on the exact quality of brick finally determined on.

Col. Walter Bell, representing the American Hotels Corporation, was present at the meeting.

Before going into the formal business session, which did not end until after midnight, the directors were the guests of President Herbert Carl at a turkey dinner in the private dining room of the Advance Restaurant.

England Finds Budget Defects

First Budget by Winston Churchill Attacked on All Sides—Return to Gold Standard Means Trade Boom For U. S.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 29.—After an overnight study of Winston Churchill's first budget, Great Britain seemed dubious today whether to jeer or cheer.

It was apparently agreed the budget contains nothing to encourage the belief that England will have an immediate trade revival. On the other hand, Lord Beaverbrook's Express said the return to the gold standard means an immediate trade boom for the United States, inasmuch as American manufacturers no longer have to compete with cheap pounds sterling in foreign markets.

Churchill's proposal for an elaborate insurance scheme also raises the doubts of the manufacturers, who claim it means that industrialists and workers will have to make additional contributions in order to support this scheme. They say this additional charge offsets any value that might be gained by reduction of the income tax.

British producers applaud the return of the McKinna Duties but motor manufacturers say that Americans have discounted the prohibitive import duty on foreign cars by expanding greatly their present stocks.

It was pointed out today that the income tax reductions grant a greater benefit to bachelors than to married men.

Women were aroused to find the new duties on silk already were reflected in increased prices for silk stockings.

The Beaverbrook press jeered the tariff on hops, referring tauntingly to the "brewers' mite." The Chronicle said the budget was a sop to the protectionists.

The conservative press was loud in its applause of the first budget submitted by the conservative Baldwin government and the opposition press was not bitterly critical, but merely dubious. Laborites and Liberals both are sure to attack the budget proposals.

FURTHER DELAY OF DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Lakehurst, N. J., April 29.—Flight of the United States dirigible Los Angeles to Porto Rico may be delayed until tomorrow because of unfavorable weather conditions.

Skies were overcast this morning. Furthermore, the dirigible, swinging at its mooring mast here, was wet from last night's rain. It will have to dry out before the start is made. Captain George W. Steele, executive officer of the Los Angeles, said today.

"It looks like a fifty fifty chance as to whether we'll be able to get away today," Captain Steele said.

STATE TROOPERS DISPERSE KU KLUX KLAN FACTIONS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Northbridge, Mass., April 29.—State constabulary from Paxton were rushed here early today when 150 persons began stoning again of 1,000 members of the Ku Klux Klan in white regalia in a field. Both factions dispersed at the appearance of the constabulary.

A dozen automobiles of the Klansmen were damaged by the stones but as far as could be learned there were no injuries suffered by either side.

The anti-Klan sympathizers surrounded the field where the Klan meeting was being held and the stoning began with a large pile of rocks at the entrance of the field used for ammunition.

Patrolmen from the local force and Whitinsville hustled to the scene and a call was sent for reinforcements.

Two Requests Rejected Under Zoning Ordinance

Public Works Board Decided It Had No Power to Grant Duffner's Request for Gas Station or Rossi Petition to Open Store—Matter Up to Appeals Board.

The first two cases that have been sent to the Board of Appeals, which was created under the provisions of the city's zoning ordinance are those of John Duffner, contractor, who desires to erect a gas station at the corner of Fair and Wall streets, and the petition of Mrs. Caroline Rossi, who resides at 14 Cedar street and desires to open a small grocery and fruit store at her home. Both petitions were rejected Tuesday evening at the regular meeting of the board of public works, who decided it had no power to grant the petitions under the provisions of the zoning ordinance. The applicants will be notified that they should take the matter up with the Board of Appeals of which Judge A. T. Clearwater is chairman.

The question arose when an application for a building permit was read from John Duffner, the local contractor, who desires to erect one or more two story frame houses on Wall street, between Henry street and Greenkill avenue, and also a service gas filling station at the corner of Wall and Fair streets. Attached to the application was a petition signed by a large number of residents in that section who favored the granting of the application.

As that section of the city is a residential section the board asked the opinion of Corporation Counsel James Jenkins, who was present at the meeting. Judge Jenkins said that under the provisions of the zoning ordinance the board had no power in the matter and the application should be rejected and the applicant notified to take the matter up with the Board of Appeals.

George W. Moore, the real estate broker, was present at the meeting representing Mr. Duffner and was informed that the matter was up to the Appeal Board and to see Judge Clearwater, chairman of that board, and obtain the necessary blanks for filing an appeal with that board.

The same action was taken in the petition of Mrs. Caroline Rossi of No. 14 Cedar street, who desires to open a small grocery and fruit store at her home.

Other matters taken up at the meeting will be found elsewhere.

"Miss America" Here Tomorrow

"Miss America," winner of the National Beauty Revue at Atlantic City, will arrive in Kingston Thursday afternoon. Her coming to this city has aroused great interest and it is expected that her appearance will be marked by a record crowd at the reception to be given in her honor in the State armory Thursday evening. Arrangements for the reception are in the hands of a committee representing the First Battalion, 156th Artillery, which organization is sponsoring the visit here of the young lady. The reception in the armory will begin at eight o'clock, but the doors will open at seven. There will be no reserved seats so that it will be a case of first come, first served. Those desiring the best points of vantage, therefor, are urged to go to the armory early.

A feature in connection with "Miss America's" visit to Kingston is the fact that she has consented to act as a judge of beauty and will select the prettiest young lady attending the reception in honor of "Miss America." And the young lady thus chosen will receive from the hands of "Miss America" a handsome silver loving cup. "Miss America" will begin judging at 9 o'clock, but will not announce her decision until one hour later. She will first select fifteen young ladies whom she regards as the most beautiful. Then she will reduce this number to five and finally choose from the remaining five the young lady who best answers "Miss America's" idea of beauty.

There will be dancing in connection with the reception. Music will be provided by the "Pennsylvanians," "Miss America's" favorite orchestra from her home state. Dancing will continue until one a. m.

"Miss America," who is Miss Ruth Malcomson of Philadelphia, is now engaged in a "See America First" tour, a trip she was asked to make following her victory in the National Beauty Revue in Atlantic City. Miss Malcomson is accompanied on her tour by her mother, who will come to Kingston with "Miss America."

JULIA MAMMEA.

Julia Mammea was the mother of the Emperor Alexander Severus of Rome (222 A. D.) and was possessed of equal genius and courage. She educated her son very carefully for the throne, making him a man of sensibility and sterling virtue.

Severus thought so highly of his mother that he consulted her in all matters and followed her advice. Julia having heard of Origen, sent for him and is supposed to have been converted by him to Christianity. She was murdered with her son in Gaul during one of the Roman campaigns by the discontented soldiery in the year 235.

VASSAR.

The first American college for the higher education of women was founded by Matthew Vassar, a brewer of Norfolk, England, where he was born 133 years ago today. His father came to America and settled down on a farm near Poughkeepsie when Matthew was four years old. Five years later the elder Vassar established himself as a brewer of ale in Poughkeepsie, being so successful that his son inherited a brewing business which made him very wealthy.

In 1845, he decided to devote a portion of the fortune he had made to the founding of a college for women, and donated $400,000 to the institution now known as Vassar College at the Hudson river city.

When Vassar died in 1868, he left $400,000 more to the institution he had founded, and several other members of the family have made subsequent lavish contributions to it.

PERSIAN RAILROADS.

The first railroad in Persia was opened 39 years ago today, connecting Teheran, the capital, with Shah Abdul Azin, a shrine and place of pilgrimage, six miles south of the city.

The line was built and operated by a Belgian company. The jealousy of the European powers, particularly England and Russia, has for years prevented the building of important railway lines in the land of the Peacock Throne, and up to the downfall of the Czarist regime, the Bear and the Lion made the country a catspaw and a place of "Spheres of Influence"—even going so far as to occupy with military forces the capital district itself and other rich provinces. After the downfall of the Czar's government, the British were just as bad, but today the customs and other financial departments are in the hands of the Americans and there is hope of the ancient land soon being placed on a sound financial basis.

Fred Booth, Floyd Countryman and Mr. Edwards of Poughkeepsie, attended the dance on Saturday night and spent Sunday with friends in this place.

All friends and neighbors were sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Sarah A. Deitz. All extend sympathy to the bereaved family. Mrs. Deitz has lived all her married life in this place. She was a good kind friend and neighbor and was liked by all who knew her. Mrs. Deitz was 83 years old.

Lewis Lasher, Jr. and friend of Kingston, attended the dance Saturday night in the hall, and Sunday they motored out to call on his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Lasher, Sr.

Mrs. Josephine Deitz and sister, Mrs. Kate Gilman of Staten Island, who have been spending some time in Kingston with their brother, Oliver Maxwell, have returned to this place and will spend some time with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lasher.

Mrs. A. Weise spent Friday afternoon last with Mrs. M. Freer.

Frank Walton and sister Olive, and J. Clark of Poughkeepsie, attended the dance Saturday evening, and spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. C. Clarke. On Sunday they motored to Westbrookville to see Mrs. Clarke's sister, Mrs. H. Van Schryver, who has been ill for a long time.

Miss Helen Pine, who returned home from the Kingston City Hospital, has so far recovered as to be walking out and calling on her friends. Monday she called on Mrs. M. Freer and Mrs. C. Walton.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jorden have returned home after spending some time in New York.

Two Glenwoods that were first lighted when Cleveland was President—

Model "C" for Coal or Wood

In pearl-gray or glossy black enamel which eliminates stove blacking forever. Also in the standard black finish. With or without a reservoir for hot water.

"EARLY in the fall of 1885, I purchased two Glenwood stoves—one for cooking and the other for heating. I am still (1925) running both stoves—the cook stove all year round and the heating stove from early fall to late spring.

"None of the iron of the cook stove is warped or even twisted and the seams have held well.

"I cannot imagine how a better running stove could be made than the Glenwood. My two have given perfect satisfaction for over 39 years."

This unsolicited testimonial from Charles W. Powers, Spencer, Mass., is only one of thousands which tell, in their own way, of the place which Glenwood Ranges hold in the hearts of their users everywhere.

Schenectady Hotel to Open

Twice the Size of The Governor Clinton, Cost Twice as Much and Will be Operated by the Same Company

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Schenectady, April 29.—Built at a cost of over $1,000,000 from funds subscribed by citizens, the new 250-room Van Curler Hotel, to be operated by the American Hotels Corporation, will be formally opened to the public at a banquet on Thursday night, May 7th.

The new hotel occupies a magnificent site at the easterly approach to the Great Western Gateway Bridge built by the state of New York across the Mohawk River, with a terraced park extending from the rear of the hotel to the shore of the river. A new street, leading directly to the main offices of the General Electric Company, has been cut through in front of the hotel. To add to the beauty of the environment, the city has purchased and torn down a number of wooden structures on a triangular plot in front of the hotel, thereby creating a plaza which will be developed into a small park.

The Thursday night banquet, according to plans announced by George D. Worthington, General manager of the American Company, will be the culmination of a four-day period of ceremonies, beginning with a flag-raising on the roof of the hotel on Monday afternoon, May 4th, a contractors' and purveyors' dinner in the hotel on Tuesday, May 5th, a reception for stock-holders during the afternoon and evening of May 6th and the public banquet on May 7th.

Governor Smith has been invited to speak at the main banquet. Other speakers, it is expected, will be Owen D. Young, as representative of the General Electric Company, Mayor William Campbell of Schenectady; John F. Homman, president of the Schenectady Hotel Company, Frank A. Dudley, president of the United Hotels Company of America and General J. Leslie Kincaid of Syracuse, president of the American Hotels Corporation.

Music will be furnished by Ben Bernie and his Hotel Roosevelt orchestra from New York city. The program will be broadcast by WGY, the General Electric station in Schenectady.

The new hotel is said to represent the last word in modern hotel construction, adapted for intermediate cities. The designers, the H. L. Stevens Company, New York city, were also the builders. The building is six stories and basement, fireproof throughout with 216 feet on Washington street and 98 feet on Bridgeside Parkway. Of Georgian style with red brick and stone as the principle material, the structure is a refreshing departure from the ordinary four-square type of hotel building.

Formal gardens with terraces for al fresco dining provide an exquisite setting between the rear of the hotel and the Mohawk river.

The main hotel entrance and driveway is from Washington street and leads through the colonnade portico to the main lobby and promenade. The social entrance is from the side parkway and leads to the foyer, general reception rooms, lounges and assembly rooms without going through the main lobby.

Entering the hotel from the Washington street entrance, we first come into the main lobby and promenade, 30 feet by 90 feet. To the right is the hotel registration office, main office, mail office, cashier's office and service clerk. The telephone office and public telephones and cigar, candy and periodical departments adjoin the hotel office. Off the main lobby, and also directly accessible to the social entrance, is the check room.

From the social entrance, the main stairway continues to the mezzanine floor parlor rooms, all of which can be used during large assemblages. The ladies' reception room and lavatory is located off the foyer, the north end of the lobby, which adjoins the social entrance stairway.

Special large parlors and suites are so planned on the mezzanine floor that they can be used singly or "en suite" with every convenience and facility to give perfect service and satisfaction to the guests.

Passing down the stairway to the south end of the lobby, is the coffee room which has a direct entrance from Washington street.

From the social entrance foyer you lead to the corner drug store, barber shop, both of which have entrances also from Washington street. Passing by the barber shop, a stairway leads to the men's smoking room, lavatory room and valet rooms.

Opposite side of social entrance foyer, you pass through doorway leading to the hotel's general offices and sample rooms.

The main lobby is in the Georgian style with pilasters and panelled walls all finished in French Putty color. The window hangings are in Italian Venetian Red Damask. From the main entrance lobby you can see the lounge directly in front of main entrance. To the north of lobby is the social entrance and stairway and to the south the foyer to main dining room and assembly room. The elevator lobby is to one side of the main lobby and is directly controlled by the hotel office.

The lobby lounge, 34 feet by 56 feet, also Georgian in style, is three steps down from the main lobby and is finished in French green with antique woodwork. At the farther end of this lounge is a large circular solarium, 30 feet in diameter, with five large double French windows, overlooking the formal garden and terraces. To the right is the large open grate fireplace, enframe from reception room and library bookcases. To the left is the entrance to tea room and private dining room with entrances to outside paved tea terrace.

The social entrance foyer with check room and ladies' reception is at the north end of the lobby and also has direct entrance to the lobby lounge so that very large assemblies can be held without interference with the regular hotel patrons and guests in the main lobby of the hotel.

The reception room 26 feet by 20 feet, has the walls in hand decoration scenic panels on canvas and the wainscot and trim of room in French gray antiqued in colors of wall decorations. The crystal mirrored brackets have amber pendants and crystals. The canvased decorations were executed by Harry DeMain, New York city.

The tea room and private dining room, 26 feet by 20 feet, same size as the reception room, is on the opposite side through the lounge. The walls are hung with imported hand blocked Old English Scenic paper and glazed in antique colors, harmonizing with the wood trim and wainscot, finished in antique grey.

The two paved terraces from lounge, private dining room and reception room are each approximately 30 feet by 20 feet in area and to be used for afternoon teas and summer dinner parties. The terraces lead directly with two wide circular stairways to the formal gardens and walks. The formal garden is surrounded by brick walls and is also entered from the Parkway through an Old English designed wooden gate, so that public social garden functions can be held in the gardens of the hotel without going through the hotel proper.

The main dining room and assembly room foyer, a few steps up from the lobby, is at the south end of the main lobby and leads directly to the main dining room, 50 feet by 36 feet area, and the assembly room, 70 feet by 36 feet area with full height accordion doors separating these two rooms, which would enable having one large assembly room, 120 feet by 36 feet, when occasion demanded. Both the main dining room and assembly room are finished in antique corn color and blue stripe figured Damask hangings. The woodwork is antiqued with the old blue and blue colors of draperies. The chandeliers and brackets are all crystal fixtures with the candleshades in old gold colored silk. There are several over-door hand painted canvas panels which are carried out in the blue and corn colors and antiqued, giving the effect of relief work. These painted panels and those in the reception room were executed by Harry DeMaine of New York city.

The assembly room and main dining room have a direct entrance from lobby lounge through tea room or private dining room. When the wide French doors are thrown open each side of the lounge and reception room, one has an unobstructed view through these doors of 124 feet to the main dining room and assembly room.

The main kitchen 16 feet high, is located in a wing back of the main dining room and assembly room and has fenestra windows on three sides, giving the maximum amount of daylight saving possible. The kitchen has been provided with unexcelled facilities for the preparation and serving of food. Separate refrigerators have been provided for the various foods, each cooled by machinery with individual control of temperature. All the kitchen machines for peeling and cleaning potatoes and vegetables, cleaning silver, mixing machines, etc., are electrically motor driven—all serving and work tables are of anti-rust metal. The floor is red Master Builders with sanitary cove base. The walls are enameled. A separate service kitchen for coffee room is below the main kitchen and is directly connected to the coffee room.

The guest elevators lead up the five typical floor elevator lobbies and corridors. The corridor walls are hung with Georgian and Colonial tapestry papers. The upper five floors contain the 203 rooms divided into the various sized suites. There are two corner suites on each floor, containing living room or parlor and one, two or three bedrooms conecting through a private foyer so that any sized suite can be had from one to five rooms. The balance of each floor is taken up with twin bedrooms with complete bath, double bedrooms with complete bath and a few single rooms with toilet and lavatory. The walls are papered with "Birge" highest quality paper and the ceilings are painted.

The corridor carpets are in beautiful tones of red with other harmonious colors in a very artistic, all-over pattern design. The rooms are entirely carpeted with several different carpet patterns. The furniture is all walnut with decorative floral designs. The window drapery is of striped mohair and in harmonious colors of carpets.

The bath rooms have tiled walls, built-in tubs, pedestal lavatories and high grade toilets and fully equipped with the most excellent quality of bathroom fitting to be seen in any hotel.

The basement contains all the hotel storage rooms, help dining rooms, helps' locker rooms and lavatories, laundry plant, mechanical and machine room, boiler room, refrigeration machine room and other rooms required in this class of hotel.

The service elevator extends from the basement to the top floor. There is an additional freight elevator which extends from the basement to the second floor, for handling all kitchen supplies and trunks to sample rooms located on second floor.

The future wing over the kitchen will add 28 rooms and the future extension to north wing will add 60 rooms whenever the need of these extensions warrants.

FARMERS AND PRICES

Considerable attention has been attracted to the gloomy picture of the plight of the American farmer recently presented by ex-Governor Lowden of Illinois "Our agriculture is decaying," he said, "and we seem unable to grasp the fact. Farm bankruptcies in recent years have increased more than 600 per cent, according to the Department of Agriculture The average farmer could have obtained a large income since 1920 if he had hired himself out as a hired man In considerable portions of the agricultural areas farms can not be sold for the value of the improvements alone." Mr. Lowden sharply rapped the optimistic reports and the juggling of index numbers to indicate improvement in farmers' finances, as both dishonest and misleading

Ex-Governor Lowden, himself a farmer, had much to say about his own experiences. Herein is room for hope that his discouraging showing is overdrawn, for men of wealth have been known to employ expensive and wasteful methods in farming which are carefully avoided by the intelligent agriculturist who faces the necessity of geting his living out of the ground. However that may be in his case, Mr. Lowden frankly notifies the Federal authorities that agricultural conditions are far from being as satisfactory as they have been represented, and confidently asserts that Government subsidizing legislation will not solve the problem. The true solution, as he rather vaguely puts it, is a national organization whereby the farmer can sell his products in the organized markets of today on terms of full equality in knowledge and power. At present "the chief trouble the farmer has," he is quoted, "is the difference between the farm dollar and the dollar of the manufacturer."

Another ex-Governor, Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, recently discussed the same subject from another angle. He deplored the personal-economy stories about President Coolidge which have been broadcasted over the country and which, he said, are starting another buyers' strike calculated to injure Republican prosperity. But a buyers' strike is not apt to threaten except when prices are above the average man's reach, and not even the President's example is likely to start one so long as prices are not beyond the average consumer's ability to pay. Farmers and consumers generally would be apt to conclude that neither of these ex-Governors has clearly pointed a way out.

THE BEST CITIZEN-TO-BE.

Many years ago Chicago picked itself as the country's biggest-city-to-be and has forged far on its way, only New York still blocking its path to the goal. With characteristic enthusiasm, not to say audacity, Chicago now proposes to pick the boy who will be its best citizen 25 years hence—or such is the announced purpose of Executive Writer of the Chicago Boys' Week Federation, and his intention to select the male youth who in 1950 will be Chicago's "best citizen" is said to have the approval and backing of many of Chicago's civic and business leaders. But, even granting Chicago's ability to perform miracles, it must be said that the scheme bristles with difficulties, and that to the selected boy in his misfortunes will be due country-wide sympathy.

For how could he survive let alone live up to, such embarrassing distinction" Even if it did not breed in him a colossal conceit ruinous in its effect on his capacity for genuine usefulness and achievement, as doubtless it would, his life would be made miserable by the ironic congratulations and jeers of his hilarious and skeptical boy acquaintances. The persecutions endured by teachers pet are trivial compared with the horrors lying in wait for all Chicago's darling Moreover the selection itself would be a hazard to terrify the most venturesome of ramblers, for rarely does [illegible] the highest in his [illegible] the city's most distinguished citizen Marked precocity in [illegible] of scholarship is apt to be [illegible] with uncanniness by [illegible] In terms to ment.

the picked boy Chicago would do well to keep his name secret from everyone, including himself.

It may be taken for granted that Governor "Ma Ferguson does not give entire satisfaction within such bodies of her sex as the League of Women Voters Her latest public utterance in the form of an essay on social topics, is said to urge early marriages and to treat "keeping the home fires burning as distinctively he women's job."

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

HOLDING YOURSELF TOGETHER.

I have spoken before about the great number of folks who are so weak about the abdomen that all the organs have dropped just a little below their normal position.

There is often a dull pain in the region, with poor appetite, and a gradual loss of weight The old enemy, constipation, is, of course, also present There is a bulging of the abdomen just about or slightly below the navel

Now these people never were of the rugged type There is usually that droopy appearance about the chest and shoulders, that is never seen in the strong or athletic man or woman

This general weakness affects the nerves that supply the muscles of the intestines, so that they do not work with the necessary vigor, and the material in the intestine actually accumulates sufficiently to drag the intestine downwards.

Everything all along the intestine is just a little bit behind time or late There is no actual obstruction, as there would be if there were any growths or bands of tissue, which sometimes press on the intestine.

And so, of course, the abdominal walls themselves, which are of muscle, are also weak, and permit the heavily loaded intestines to bulge them outward.

Now, there are many suggestions given as to treatment of these cases. My usual suggestion, as you know, is that the entire body should be built up, and the muscular tone of the intestine, and the walls of the abdomen, would so "tighten up" that everything would be lifted back into place.

Where exercise is not possible—in elderly or sick cases—then an abdominal support may be used

The meals should not be very large and more than three may then be taken daily. Large meals, particularly with much liquid is a mistake. The idea of complete rest, mental and physical, after meals is of the utmost importance, so that indigestion can get a good start.

The suggestion given before, of lying on the right side for ten minutes, four hours after each meal, is of great help in getting the stomach emptied before the next meal.

Where "nerves" enter into the matter, the treatment rests to a great extent with the good sense of the patient.

Worry or emotion of any kind can cause "delay" in intestinal digestion, and depress all the motor functions.

NATIONAL FOREST TO BE LOCATED IN NEW JERSEY

The Dix National Forest to be located in Burlington and Ocean counties, New Jersey, on the site of the Camp Dix Military Reservation, has just been published by executive order of President Coolidge, announces the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

The area involved embraces about 6,800 acres and marks the first National Forest ever to be established in New Jersey. It is created under the provisions of Section nine of the Clarke-McNary Act which provides for National Forests under the jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture on existing military and naval reservations, with the consent of the secretary controlling the reservation and subject to the regulations and plans agreed upon by the two secretaries concerned.

A line has been drawn delimiting the National Forest so as to exclude the intensively used portion of the reservation entirely from the National Forest The military use of the entire reservation continues as heretofore.

It is the plan of the Forest Service, as soon as funds are available, to undertake the administration of this National Forest. This administration will consist of protection of the area from fire and trespass and the sale of forest products which may be spared. It may be expected that there will be an improvement of the stand of timber by the judicious removal of defective material. It may be necessary to plant certain portions of the reservation in order to carry out the objectives for which the forest was created.

Forests under similar conditions are to be located at Pine Plains Military Reservation, Camp Upton and other military reservations.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

ORCHARD RENOVATION IS IMPORTANT TASK

Orchard renovation, properly done, involves good tillage ample fertilizing, special pruning, insect and disease control, and such other procedure as special conditions require, says E. H. Rawl, assistant extension horticulturist, in discussing the possibilities of bringing neglected orchards into profitable production Mr. Rawl calls attention to the fact that in some states a neglected orchard is declared by law to be a public nuisance and is treated accordingly, so that when the owners fail to clean them up public officials do it at the expense of the owners

There are many orchards that are suffering from lack of attention and are not only not producing profitably but are a serious menace because they harbor insects and diseases. He makes the following suggestions for the treatment of such orchards:

In pruning an old orchard for rejuvenation special methods should be used for different kinds of fruit and for different conditions. As a general rule neglected trees are pruned more severely than trees that have been pruned systematically and carefully each year.

Associated with neglected trees is an orchard soil that has not been cultivated properly. The soil should be plowed as deep as possible without the destruction of too many large roots. This deep plowing should be done in the early winter and followed by thorough disk harrowing in the early spring.

The trees should be fertilized, in the early spring with stable manure or commercial fertilizer, or both. Just before the buds begin to open an application of nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia will give good results as manifested by an increase in fruit setting.

After the pruning is completed in the winter, an application of lime-sulphur spray (dormant strength) should be given the trees to free them of scale insects or other insects and spores of pathological diseases.

Clean cultivation should be practiced throughout the summer, and a regular spray program should be followed. In early fall a cover crop should be planted in the orchard to increase the fertility and improve the physical condition of the soil.

Brown Rot of Plums Is Controlled by Spraying

To control brown rot of plums all the "mummied" fruits should be destroyed if possible. The tree should be given a thorough spraying with lime-sulphur, at the winter strength, shortly before buds begin to swell. Strong copper sulphate solution is satisfactory and may be used instead of the lime-sulphur spray if there is no San Jose scale present. The tree should be sprayed later with self-boiled lime-sulphur. This should be done about six weeks after blossoming. For the preparation of strong copper sulphate solution use about two pounds of copper sulphate to 25 gallons of water. To make self-boiled lime-sulphur use four pounds of sulphur, four pounds of rock lime and 25 gallons of water. Use good hard rock lime for the heat must come entirely from the lime. Place the lime in the bottom of a cask, place the sulphur on top of it and then add hot water slowly until the lime is slacked, stirring carefully. Then allow to cook with own heat for a few minutes, add the remainder of the water needed, strain and apply at once.

Guards on Trees Should Be Taken Off in Spring

Wood veneer or paper placed about trunks of fruit trees in the fall to prevent injury from mice and rabbits during the winter should be removed in the spring. This is advised for two reasons. First, the bark needs sun and air to ripen properly; second, paper or wood veneer left on trunks of trees during the summer affords retreats for injurious insects.

Still another reason for taking protectors off in the spring is the fact that young trees are rapid growers, and before one realizes it the bark is pressed against the wood veneer to the point of injury. The continued use of tarred paper on fruit trees is injurious.

The orchardist should examine trunks of young trees and should cover gnawed portions with grafting wax. The bark will grow over a small injury in time, but in case of complete girdling, either rabbits or mice, bridge grafting should be resorted to.—F. L. Washburn, Division of Entomology and Economic Zoology, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.

Eradicate Yucca Plant by Cutting Off Tops in July

The yucca plant is a perennial which spreads more or less by extending its roots. It does no good to cut off the tops in the spring; in fact, it does more harm than good, as the tops should be allowed to grow until about July when possible, so that the roots may be exhausted of their stored food. The tops should be cut off in July and keep cutting off all tops as fast as they appear after that time until late in the fall

GARAGEMEN HONEST AS ANY OTHER CLASS

"Most of them are as honest as any other class of merchants," asserts an anonymous writer in the May issue of Your Car, the new automobile owners' magazine, which is now on the stands. Then he proceeds: "But since this article is to be run without my name attached, I don't mind admitting that I have worked every conceivable trick on my patrons that you can think of. I had to do it to make a living in this mighty tough business."

"Where I make most of my money," continues this writer, "is in oils and gasoline. Listen to this. I buy a barrel of oil of medium grade and another barrel of so-called heavy oil. It is cheap oil, very cheap. Whatever brand of oil a customer asks for, he gets what I have in the barrel.

"At the gasoline pump I put it over on the smartest customer. One of the old tricks which I still work is to pump as fast as I can. That pumps gasoline and air—a lot of air and for every five gallons the pump is short about two quarts."

These are just a few of the many tricks exposed by this dishonest salesman and he ends his article with the advice to motor car owners who do not want to be cheated to patronize the reputable automobile merchant, preferably the one who handles the particular make of car the patron is driving. The established automobile merchant will no more cheat you than the established banker. Patronize the man who has a good name to protect.

We can all profit by taking this advice.

MINE IS FOUND AFTER 29 YEARS

Gilbert, Latest Nevada Goldfield, Reward of Persistence of Prospectors.

Gilbert Ner.—Days of the old Western frontier are recalled vividly by this new mining camp, a gold-boom town that has sprung up at a place where only rocks and sand were visible a few weeks ago.

Scenes here are reminiscent to old-timers of such camps as Goldfield, Manhattan and Rawhide twenty-odd years ago

Gilbert now has a Main street, lined with wooden structures of all sizes and sorts There is even a weekly paper, the Gilbert Record. The hillsides are dotted with 100 or more tents. Almost hourly big trucks arrive from Tonopah and Mina, the nearest railroad points, loaded with lumber, coal, machinery and supplies. New houses are going up, and almost every line of business incident to a mining camp is represented. There are stores, restaurants, an assay office, law offices, a garage and service station, a dance hall.

First Inkling Came 29 Years Ago.

The real story of Gilbert starts in 1898, when Charles Lampson, a desert prospector, picked up a piece of rich gold quartz near an Indian camp in the Monte Cristo range. Lampson passed many months searching the hills for the outcropping from which the gold had come. Finally he gave up and wandered away to other fields.

J. B. Gilbert took up the search. He met with no more success than Lampson. His sons, however, persisted in the hunt The elder Gilbert died many years ago. Nearly twenty-three years later his three sons, Fred, Herman and Logan, located the Last Hope. They had called it that because they had planned to make it their last effort to wring gold from those hills.

The Gilbert boys began to get values from the surface. They took out a shipment, and the excitement started. A few days later Dick Raycraft, a veteran prospector, working for the Gilberts, discovered the "jewelry shop" in a badger hole on top of a hill now known as the Black Mammoth. Some of the rock assayed $1 or more a pound This started a stampede.

Guard Patrols Discovery Claims.

The exposed rock on the surface of the Gilbert holdings is so rich that an armed guard patrols the place night and day. Thousands have visited the strike. It is estimated that not less than $5,000 has been given away in specimens.

Hundreds of prospectors are in the surrounding hills. Many new strikes have been reported. Every day the interest grows more intense. Old-time gold seekers are coming back from Mexico, from Canada and elsewhere.

While the Gilberts' Last Hope first drew attention to the new field, it is the Black Mammoth and the Homestake that bid fair to make the camp world famous. The Homestake is just beyond Black Mammoth, and recently it gave up a ledge 1,000 feet long which pans gold the entire distance. There are eight different locations where gold specimens may be taken from the surface at random.

5 Impoverished Doctors Kill Selves in Austria

New York.—According to a report of the Economic Society of Austria, the medical profession of that country is in a precarious financial position. Five physicians are said to have committed suicide during the year on account of poverty.

The Vienna correspondence of the Journal of the American Medical Association, who summarized the report, says ten years have witnessed marked change for the worse in physicians' finances. Especially, he says, during the last two years it has been observed there has been a 150 per cent increase in the number of requests for monetary assistance that reached the society.

It was particularly significant that a considerable number of physicians have given up the practice of medicine and are endeavoring to make a living in other ways. During 1924 five physicians committed suicide on account of financial stress, three at an advanced age (sixty-five to seventy) and two younger men.

The physicians in the cities who have a practice confine their activities almost entirely to the work of the health insurance societies or some form of contract practice. They have very few private patients.

Gets Job; Falls Dead

New York.—George Bower was seventy-five years old and had several sons near Haverstraw, where he lived, who were glad to take care of him. He had a little money, too, so nobody in the town took him seriously six months ago when he began looking for work.

From early until late, in that six months, he paced the streets of Haverstraw. He called at the office of the interstate park commission and asked the clerk if he had a job for him.

The clerk answered "Yes," and Bower fell dead.

SEVEN MOTHERS DIE TO EVERY 1,000 BABES BORN

Lack of Pre-Natal Clinics in Cities Surveyed Blamed in Report to Conference.

New York.—For every thousand babies born in eighty-six cities in the United States seven mothers give up their lives, Dr. George T. Palmer, director of research of the American Child Health association, reported at the national conference on child health held at Columbia university under the auspices of the Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Some of the places in which investigations were made, Doctor Palmer said, lose 10 per cent of the babies born, largely because the cities are not provided with pre-natal clinics.

"Diphtheria attacked nearly seven thousand persons, mostly children, in these cities a year ago," said Doctor Palmer. "Only 40 cities, however, have made any material beginning in educating the public as to immunization against this disease.

"In only 67 cities is the water supply above suspicion, and only 21 of these have 90 per cent or more of the milk pasteurized. The promising health note of this survey is that each city has a health officer, but only half of them devote full time to their work. Every city has a public health service.

"In 54 of the cities health information is being taught in the schools, in the language that the child understands. Out of 900 schools visited the common drinking cup was found in only 13. The majority of children are sleeping with their windows open."

Other speakers at the conference were Dr. Samuel McCune Lindsay, professor of social legislation at Columbia university, who presided; Emma Dolfinger, director of the association's health education division; Dr. Philip Van Ingen, secretary of the association, and Dr. Haven Emerson, professor of public health administration.

"If we are to have genuine health education," Miss Dolfinger said, "we must have teachers trained for health teaching and health schools.

"The public schools can and should produce girls and boys whose behavior is personally and socially healthful. Only so will the most perfect public health facilities we can devise be properly appreciated, properly financed and properly used to achieve their purpose of improving the public weal."

Veterans Plan Model Refuge at Spencer Manor

Detroit, Mich.—An endowment fund with which to maintain Spencer Manor as the home of disabled and aged veterans, their widows and orphans is contemplated by the National Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Spencer Manor, a 472-acre tract of rolling country land near Eaton Rapids, Mich., and fronting for a mile on the placid Grand river, was the gift of Corey J. Spencer, wealthy clubman of Jackson, Mich., and a member of the order.

"A village full of life, hope and happiness" is Mr. Spencer's idea of what Spencer Manor should be.

The tract of land, which he deeded to the organization, lies between Jackson and Lansing, and is of clay loam. All but 100 acres is tillable.

Giant trees, small brooks and springs and numerous glens add to the attractiveness of the site.

It is here the V. F. W., looking forward, hopes to see grow a village of neat little bungalows, with well-kept gardens, a school for children and a place for Sabbath worship. "A home rather than an institution," is the way officers of the organization outline the project. It is intended there shall be work for those who can work and comfort for those unable to labor.

Wait 1,000 Feet to Open Parachute, Keep Wits

New York.—After a series of tests at Mitchel field, army firing officers said that the theory that a person falling from a great height loses consciousness during the descent had been disproved.

Sergt. Randall L. Bose and Corporal Arthur Berge went up in a bombing plane and, coached by Lieut. M. L. Millett, parachute officer, performed four delayed parachute jumps. Each man, on the first jump, fell 1,000 feet before opening his parachute, while Sergeant Bose dropped 800 feet on his second leap.

Both said that, though they were falling with terrific velocity when they opened their parachutes, they were fully conscious.

Weave Beds for Dogs

Seattle, Wash.—Mother used to permit the old dog to lie on a rag carpet remnant beside the heater in the sitting room, but nowadays an industry thrives on manufacturing mats for dogs.

An unusual shipment from the Orient aboard the Iyo Maru, which arrived here recently, was a carload of dog mats which will add to the comfort of American dogs. They are made from a tough fiber with the rough-cut ends woven in to prevent scratching of the floor. Eastern cities get the bulk of the shipments.

Women Workers Annoyed

Tokyo.—The young women ticket sellers at the Tokyo station have made representations to the railway authorities to abolish the hanging of their peace plates beside the booking office on the ground that they are deluged with love letters from strangers.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By Mary Graham Bonner

FRONT LAWN COW

The Queen of the Fairies was taking a flying trip on the back of Fly-High, the Elves' bird.

The Elves wanted the Queen of the Fairies to come to the big banquet they were giving. The other Fairies were going to arrive on the backs of the largest butterflies that could be found.

But the Queen of the Fairies was going to have Fly-High for herself. The Elves had insisted upon that.

Fly-High was decorated gayly with ribbons and streamers and flowers.

It was when Fly-High was slowing down a bit, for they were away ahead of time, that the Queen of the Fairies saw a cow sitting upon a front lawn, in front of a lovely white house.

"Have I time to stop and have a chat with that cow?" asked the Queen of the Fairies.

"Lots of time," said Fly-High, "we went so quickly at first that we're way ahead of time."

So the Queen of the Fairies got down from Fly-High's back and Fly-High took a rest under a lovely red maple tree while the Fairy Queen talked to the cow.

You may be able to imagine how pleased the cow was to think that the Queen of the Fairies had stopped to talk to her.

So the cow looked out of her big soft eyes at the Queen of the Fairies and said:

"Fairy Queen, I've often dreamed of you."

"Ah, so you know who I am," the Queen of the Fairies said, delightedly.

"Yes," the cow answered. "You see I sit out here a great deal and dream of many things as I chew my cud. One time when I was a little calf I dreamed of a Fairy Queen, and today when you came I knew you were the one of my dreams when I was little.

"I am a very lucky cow. I have beautiful dreams and my best dream has come true and I am loved by a little girl who is as dainty and sweet as a fairy, if you will not object to my saying so."

"Object!" said the Queen of the Fairies. "I am flattered! I love to be told that I am like a child or that a child is like me. It is a beautiful thing to be told."

"She is a lovely child, too," said the cow. "She is so lovely that somehow it makes me feel nicer. You see I am a pet here. They haven't any other pets. They just have one cow—that is myself.

"They haven't any yard in the back to speak of—only a wee vegetable garden—and so I am given the front lawn as my pasture.

"I love it here. My little mistress comes out and puts her arms around me and talks to me and I talk as best I can to her.

"Sometimes people have gone by here and have said:

"'Oh, see the cow in the front yard, right on the front lawn!'

"Then some have said:

"'Well, the cow looks almost like a pet cow. There is something about her that looks that way.'

"And they have been right.

"In the winter I live in the barn across the road. Then my little mistress comes to see me twice every day—sometimes she has time to stop in for a moment around lunch time before she goes back to school.

"She looks so pretty in the winter. Her cheeks are red and her eyes so bright, and her laughter and her voice sound like tinkling, silvery musical sleigh bells in the frosty air. She wears a heavy gray coat and a red scarf about her neck and long red mittens."

"She must be lovely," said the Queen of the Fairies, "and you talk as though you were used to pleasant talk and affection, and certainly as though you were a pet.

"I'm glad I stopped off to speak to you. But now I think I'd better be on my way. Come along, Fly-High."

The Fairy Queen was off, waving to the cow as she sailed away on Fly-High's back. Then she disappeared high into the air and it seemed as though she were but a pinky, silvery, lavender-blue cloud. Really it was the effect of the colors and streamers from Fly-High's back.

The little girl came out to speak to her pet cow. "Darling Bossy," she began, but Bossy had a far-away look in her eyes.

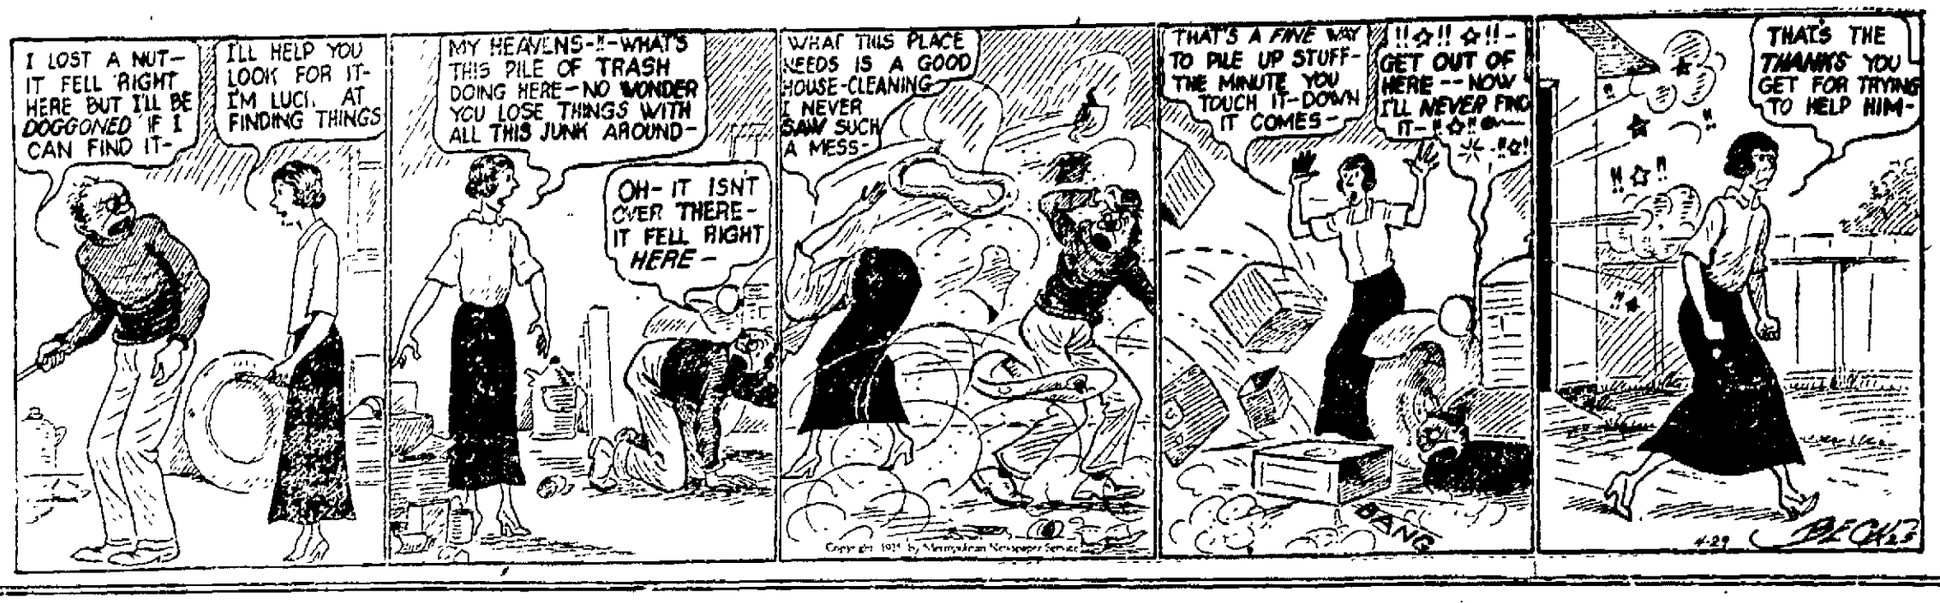

"I believe you've seen a fairy," she cried. "There's a look in your eyes that tells me that."

The cow turned and looked at her and as best she could, with the help of her big soft eyes she answered:

"I have, I have."

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Yes! they are here again, the long, long days,
After the days of winter, pinched and white;
Seen with a thousand minstrels comes the light,
Late, the sweet robin-haunted dusk delays.

DO YOU LIKE ONIONS?

"An onion a day keeps the doctor away." Would that there were more lovers of onions, as health goes with them. Robert Louis Stevenson calls the onion the poetic soul of the salad bowl.

For an all-round vegetable, the onion stands first, being wholesome, nourishing, stimulating, antiseptic and prophylactic. Can we name another with such a record?

Those who are weak and feeble, find that the free use of onions gives strength. Our grandmothers knew the prophylactic powers of onion sirup or onion poultice for colds and coughs.

The antiseptic effect of the onion is active in the large intestine where the imperfectly digested food may be stagnating and poisoning the body. The onion disinfects and cleanses the whole system.

To some, perhaps, the fact that indulgence in the crisp deliciousness of the odoriferous bulb bars us from our friends, may be the charm which appeals. To others who eat with discretion as to time and place, there need be no regrets. We only enjoy them ourselves, protest most when we are deprived and others in our company have indulged. Consideration for others should be one of our principles.

For the sake of peace and comfort for all, eat a bit of parsley after onions; it really does help to soften the odor.

Boiled onions do not leave the breath so offensively fragrant as the raw ones, yet the latter are most valuable, and many who are so fond of them, make up their minds that they may as well be disliked for a strong odor as a weak one.

For an onion poultice, to use in congestion, when the lungs are affected, there is no remedy more quickly active than chopped onions, mixed with a little rye flour, and a bit of vinegar. Place on a thin cloth over the throat and lungs, renewing often to keep moist. A few hours of this treatment will help a bad case.

Lizard Far From Home

An Australian bearded lizard (not a lounge lizard either) was recently found sunning itself on the railway track near Finsbury, near London, England. As the locality is in the dock area, it is supposed that the mysterious stranger landed there as a stowaway and was engaged on a tour of exploration. It has beneath the chin a fold of skin which, unnoticeable when the reptile is in repose, can be expanded into a conspicuous frilly frill, suggestive of a beard, for the purpose of frightening enemies. If this fails, it has a very effective weapon in its spiny tail, with which it can inflict serious wounds.

Drunken Drivers Lose License

Two More Men Guilty of Driving Car While Intoxicated Have Licenses Revoked and Fined $300 Each—Bruck Was Fined $50.

County court was adjourned by the clerk Tuesday morning, after a brief session until this morning at 10 o'clock, however an afternoon session was held Tuesday when several defendants appeared. Clerk Geroldsek was hastily summoned and three defendants arraigned before County Judge Joseph M. Fowler. In all three cases pleas of guilty were made and the cases were disposed of.

District Attorney Traver moved judgment in the case of The People vs. Patrick Jordan, after Jordan had changed his former plea of not guilty to guilty of the crime as charged in the indictment. Jordan was arrested on the Saugerties road near the city line by Officer Burger following an automobile collision on the Saugerties road in which a Hudson car was damaged. Jordan had refused to give his name following the accident and was placed under arrest charged with driving a car while intoxicated. He was indicted by the grand jury on that charge. His license to drive was revoked, he was fined $200 to be paid to the state of New York and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail, the jail sentence being suspended during good behavior and on condition Jordan pay to the county of Ulster $100 to defray the cost of prosecution. He paid. Jordan resides in Kingston and is employed as a boatman. Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., appeared for Jordan.

Fred Hommel of Glasco indicted on the same charge was given the same fine when he pleaded guilty. Mr. Brinnier also appeared for him. Hommel was given until June 15 to get together the necessary $200 cash to pay the state and also the necessary $100 to pay to the county to relieve him of spending 30 days in the county jail. His cash bail was continued until that time.

Harry Bruck of Kingston changed his former plea of not guilty to guilty of the crime charged in the indictment, that of carrying a pistol without a permit. Bruck was fined $50 which he paid.

In the case of John Ashley indicted for driving a car while intoxicated, Thomas J. Coughlin who appeared for Ashley and stated to the court that the case would be disposed of without a trial. Ashley would plead guilty. The defendant was in New York and could not get to court Tuesday.

Court then adjourend until this morning at 10 o'clock.

Turkish Sumptuary Laws

The Constantinople vilayet council was recently asked by the ministry of the interior to draw up a sumptuary law forbidding legal prodigality. A commission, which has worked hard on the project, has now devised a number of minute restrictions on the marriages of the well-to-do. Under the rules proposed a bridegroom will give his bride a ring not exceeding 20 Turkish pounds in value, about $10, and no other wedding present. As for the bride, she may not bring to her new household more than two dresses in all, and her contribution to the furnishings may be no more than for one room.

Weddings must pass off without nuptial banquets, only sweets and innocuous sirups being offered to the guests. The wedding procession must not parade more than five carriages or motor cars. As for banquets to celebrate the births of children, they also are forbidden.

These regulations, which have not yet been adopted, would have taken the wind out of a Stamboul Turk who, not very long ago, shocked the respectable street with a parade of 40 carriages and who opened 100 cases of champagne for his guests.

Dictionary in Demand

The spelling bee in which Republican woman voters competed at the Oak Lane Review club on Tuesday was but a more elaborate event than many which nowadays test the fair orthographers at afternoon parties, says the Philadelphia Bulletin. Cross-word brain twisters necessitate many a resort to the dictionary and success in the game, whether for person satisfaction or in trying for prizes, requires cultivation of the gentle art of correct spelling. Whatever the impelling cause, the benefit derived from improved orthography is very desirable.

Oldsters profited by the rigorous oral drill in spelling which was prominent in the simplified schooling of other days. Whatever the theory of modern methods, the results in modern manuscripts do not do it credit. There is too much boggling over words that enter into the ordinary vocabulary, too much spelling according to the letter-writer's own taste and fancy. If the cross-word puzzle and the spelling bee will help to better spelling they are to be encouraged.

Hats Off, Fellers!

The Honorable Mrs. Richard Norton, before sailing back home with the prince of Wales' party, paid a splendid compliment to American manhood.

"American men," she said at a Tuxedo luncheon, "are the handsomest men in the world. But that is nothing. They are the most moral men in the world, and that's everything.

"An American girl writer was telling me the other day how, to get material, she traveled in the wild West and worked in factories and mines, and lived in the slums.

"'But aren't you afraid,' I asked, 'to go about in this way unprotected?'

"'Oh,' said she, 'I'm not unprotected. I never venture beyond the call of the American gentleman.'"

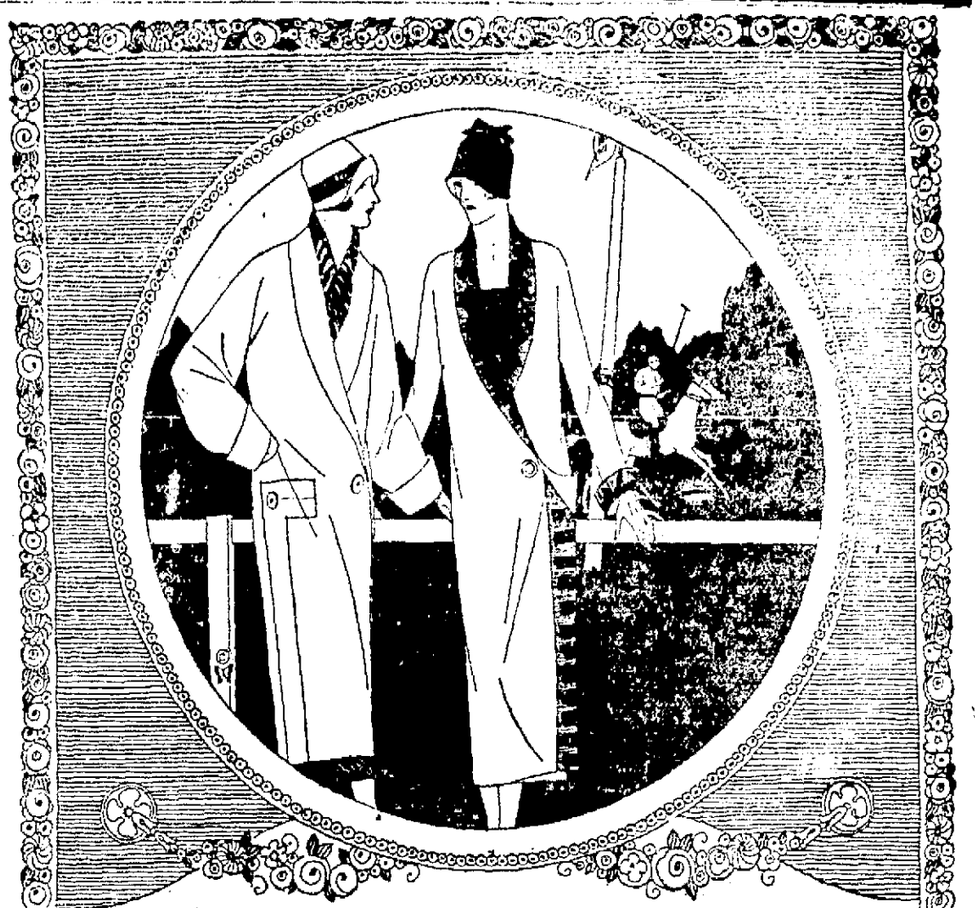

Maya Culture Takes Rank With the Best

About two thousand years ago, writes S. G. Morley, in the Mentor Magazine, while the peoples of northwestern Europe were living in a state of utmost barbarism, there was slowly flowering in the New world the most brilliant civilization of ancient America—namely, the Maya of southern Mexico and northern Guatemala. From a cultural point of view the Mayas were the Greeks of the New world.

In many spheres of human activity these Maya excelled, almost beyond believing. In architecture, sculpture, and painting; in ceramics, stone and feather mosaics, and the lapidary art; in astronomy, history, and chronology, in this last-mentioned field their attainments were so remarkable that it may be claimed that no people of the Old world at that time—2,000 years ago—had worked out a system of chronology anywhere approaching that of the Maya, not only in accuracy of results, but also in simplicity of use.

This spectacular progress the Maya accomplished without man's two greatest aids to civilization in the Old world—namely, beasts of burden and tools of metal. When it is considered that they had no beasts of burden, no horses, asses, oxen, camels, or elephants to care for them, nor tools of iron, bronze, copper, or tin to cut and hew and carve with, it may be ventured that, judged by what they had, they achieved more than any other people the world has ever known.

ENORMOUS INCREASE IN CEMENT BUSINESS.

During the year 1924, the International Cement Corporation, of which the Rosendale Portland Cement Co., Inc., at Hudson, N. Y., is a part, increased its productive capacity from 5,600,000 barrels to 7,000,000 barrels, according to the annual report of the corporation. At the same time, the capital assets or investment of the International Corporation, in fixing the plants, properties and equipment of the eight mills located in North and South America increased from $77,012,311.51 to $79,561,251.19.

Investments made by the International Corporation for 1925 provided the completion of the mill of the Kaiser Portland Cement Co., the enlargement of the Cuba and Houston, Texas, plants, the acquisition of the plant, site and mill with adequate supply of raw materials near Norfolk, Virginia, and the beginning of the construction of a modern mill at Norfolk with a productive capacity of 3,000,000 barrels per year. The plants in Argentina and Uruguay were also enlarged.

With the completion of the Norfolk, Virginia, plant in August of this year, and the additional improvements in the foreign plants, the productive capacity of the corporation will be approximately 8,500,000 barrels annually.

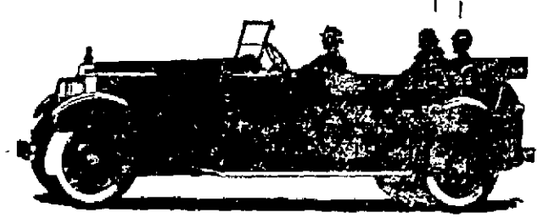

During the year all the plants were operated to full capacity. In Cuba, it has been found necessary to still further increase the productive capacity of the plant again and it is expected that the increased tonnage will be available the latter part of 1925.

Net income for the year, after the payment of federal income taxes, depreciation and depletion reserves, amounted to $2,047,306.90, as compared with $2,422,577.21 for the year 1923. Allowing for preferred dividends paid, this net income is equivalent to approximately $7.11 per share on the 400,000 shares of common stock outstanding at the close of the year, as compared with $8.37 on the 266,167 shares outstanding at the close of the previous year. Of the $7.11 earned on each share of common stock, $4 per share was paid out in dividends.

Kingston Women Would Have Tea

So They Broke the Doors of John Elmendorf's House, Helped Themselves to Tea, Paid for It, and Caused Him to Decline Further Custodianship.

(By Augustus H Van Buren)

The struggle of the patriots not to allow tea to be imported or used as long as England claimed the right to tax the colonies is a well known story. The tale of the "Boston Tea Pary," is, or should be, familiar to every school child. During the Revolution the use of tea was discouraged as affording aid to England. Patriotic women, in the words of Martha Washington, "banished the detestable weed" from their tables.

This sacrifice upon the altar of America does not seem to have been joined in by some of the women of Kingston. Perhaps the reason was that the D. A. R. had not been born. Tea had evidently become a very scarce article in Kingston, for in August, 1776, Johannis Sleght wrote the Provincial Convention, that, "The women surround the committee chamber, and say if they cannot have tea, their husbands and sons shall fight no more." Perhaps they had not heard of Patrick Henry's "Give me Liberty or give me Death," and in lieu of it declared, "Give us tea or give us George III."

The Convention replied to Sleght's letter that the convention had in contemplation the passing of a general resolution respecting the tea within the state, and that the convention, "except you will use your utmost endeavors to keep peace and good order amongst you, till such resolutions are passed, in the best manner you can."

September 30, 1776, the Provincial Convention appointed a committee "to take into consideration the abuses committed in withholding tea by the owners or agents thereof, within this state, and also in the sale thereof at higher prices than that limited by Congress."

On October 17, 1776, the Committee of Safety declared that, "whereas some of the tea holders forgetting their duties as patriots, refuse to dispose of their tea until such time as an artificial scarcity shall induce the good women of this state to tempt them to sell it at exhorbitant prices. Therefore, resolved, that the committees of the several counties take from the tea holders all the tea they have over 25 pounds and appoint some person to retail it at six shillings per pound together with three pence a pound for their expenses. No more than 12 pounds to be sold to any one person or family."

The convention evidently put the foregoing resolution into effect, for, on October 8, 1776, Johannis Sleght, who was the chairman of the Kingston committee, again wrote to the convention: "We have this day received certain information that a man did come to this town with orders to remove the tea which was stored in the house of Capt. John Elmendorph, by Gardes Beekman. When we received this information a committee was called who came to the following resolution: 'Resolved, That the tea which is now stored in this town of Kingston, shall not be removed from the place where it now is, by the owners, nor by any other person, till such time as the resolution of the Convention of the State of New York respecting the same shall be public.' I am sorry to give the Honorable Convention so much trouble about this affair, and beg to be excused, when I once more desire the favor of your Honorable House, to make an end of this troublesome business as soon as possible; which we hope will not only restore peace and good order here, but also much oblige your friends and most humble servant."

The dove of peace did not come to Kingston. Instead Mars, fully armed and equipped arrived, and the dogs of war from all over the county charged upon Kingston.

Let Sleght tell the horrible tale:

"Committee Chambers,
"Kingston, November 18th, 1776.

"Sir: The inhabitants of this county, till within a few days, have been distinguished for their firmness and attachment to the resolves of Congresses and Committees; in short, have been as peaceable, we flatter ourselves, as any people in this State. But it is with regret that we are under the disagreeable necessity to inform you that we are daily alarmed, and our streets are filled with mobs from different parts of the county, breaking of doors, and committing outrages to the disturbance of peace and of the good people of this town, owing, as we have reason to believe, to the misfortune of having that detestable article called tea, stored here, which is taken by them and divided or distributed in such manner as they think fit. We have heretofore assured the good people that your Congress would pass a resolve for the disposal of that article lodged here; and it is asserted, and by what authority we know not, that your Congress had passed a resolve to that purpose, but before the publication thereof, repealed or made void the same, which the people whom we have had before us assign in justification of their conduct in the premises. We now entreat you to advise us how and in what manner we shall suppress these disturbances. We will not assume to dictate to your Honorable House, but we are well assured that if a resolve was to be passed establishing a price and ordering a disposal thereof, would tend to the interest of the proprietors and the peace of the good people of this State.

We are, Sir, with great respect,
Your very humble servants,
By order of the Committee
Johannis Sleght Chairman"

The records do not tell us how long Civil War lasted in Kingston, certainly until after Thanksgiving Day. Social pleasures of that day do not seem to have stemmed the red tide of war. Perhaps the patriotic women of Kingston were stung to madness by being deprived of their beloved beverage for the Thanksgiving dinner. Whatever may have been the cause, the tea being stored in the house of John Elmendorf, a number of the women, "Proceeded in a body to the storehouse of Mary Elmendorf, where they knew it was kept, they forced their way in, and each one, after weighing out what tea she wanted, deposited the price, as regulated by Congress, on the counter, and left rejoicing."

Mary's husband John Elmendorf, alludes to this in the following letter to the convention:

"Kingston, 3d December, 1776.

"Sir I am happy to hear that the Convention entertains such an opinion of my fidelity to our common cause, as to empower me in procuring requisites in order to make our common defence, but am sorry to inform you, that at this present time that I cannot accept of that trust reposed in me, for the reason of such daily depredations and plunder of private property at my house. You are sensible that when such outrages are committed, in having your doors splintered, forced, etc., it is requisite for an honest man, and a lover of his country's rights, to alleviate the distress of my good family (as they may be called by the world), with my presence. Nothing grieves me more than to daily observe, and be an eye witness to such confusion and turbulent dispositions of the people. I should willingly embrace an opportunity for the services of my country at any other time; so, with reliance, must decline, and refer you to some other person for the completion of the trust I was honored with.

I am, with the greatest esteem and regard, For the welfare of the public in general, Your most obed humb servt.

Jno Elmendorf"

The records do not disclose how and when the difficulties ended. But we can be certain that peace once more reigned in Kingston. The afternoon teas, the quilting, and sewing societies resumed their meeting and tea was plenty.

GLASSLESS SODA FOUNTAINS URGED BY SANITARIANS

Within the last several months health officers of hundreds of cities and towns have waged war against the uncleanliness of drinking glasses found in soda fountains, restaurants, hotels and other places and the results of these crusades compiled by the General Health Bureau of New York city have convincedd many of them that the public health demands the total abolition of glass receptacles.

Ever since the beginning of legislation against the common cup in 1910—which eventually resulted in the passage of corrective laws in forty six of the states—sanitarians have contended that public glass drinking vessels have been responsible for the spread of pneumonia, influenza, diphtheria, tonsilitus, measles, tuberculosis, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, grippe and common colds.

In all the state laws, and in cities where ordinances supplement the statutes, provisions are made for sterilization of glasses between users but inspections have revealed that these orders for cleansing are frequently disobeyed, particularly during the summer months when beverage dispensaries enjoy their greatest patronage.

The futility of constant surveillance has led two cities in North Carolina, Durham and Goldsboro, to order all glasses from soda fountains. In the present session of the Rhode Island Legislature a bill presented by Senator Harry Sandersen is pending which would remove glasses from soda fountains. A similar measure was introduced in the Indiana Legislature in January but the passage was laid over.

Recently Dr. A. S. Fell, Health Officer of Trenton, N. J., threatened that if city soda fountains did not obey the law an ordinance abolishing glasses would be necessary.

"We have advocated time and again," said Dr. Fell, "the use of individual paper containers where soda and ice cream are served. Some dispensers do provide them and they are entitled to commendation but there are others who do not. The latter still cling tenaciously to the common drinking glass and dish and give them a hasty dash in a rinsing material that is never above suspicion. Why do the latter class continue that practice and wait for the possible enactment of a law which will force them to stop it? Common decency demands it and we have no doubt but what the public would heartily endorse the move.

"If the public are wise they will heed this advice and go only where modern sanitary ideals are carried out in their entirety. Then they need have no fear of contracting any disease that may be spread through the use of common containers."

Dr John S. Fulton, Director of Maryland's State Department of Health, is no less emphatic.

"At this time of year," he said, "when colds are likely to be prevalent one of the sources of infection that should be carefully avoided is the common drinking cup. No matter where it may be found, whether in the home, in the schools, in offices, factories or in any public or private places the general drinking cup is to regarded as a source of danger."

In Albuquerque, New Mexico, where a general inspection recently was completed, the Health Department issued this summary:

"In general, the condition of the soda fountains has been satisfactory but there has been considerable laxness in regard to sterilization of the glasses and spoons in some of the places. Several of these places are using paper cups that are used but once. This is a most important measure for the protection of the health of the community. It should be adopted more widely by the fountains.

"The public should request that its soft drinks be served in paper containers so as to avoid the danger of insufficient sterilization during rush hours."

Dr. Frank J Monaghan, Commissioner of Health in New York City, recently has instituted a campaign to correct conditions in soda fountains that fall into jointly between regular inspections. His efforts in this respect are supplemented by many civic organizations. One of these, the Mott Haven Ladies' Auxiliary, reminds:

"Trips to Bronx soda fountains were made by the captain and her team and instruction issued to proprietors in the methods of proper sanitation. This work was carried on from time to time and wherever possible the use of paper cups was urged."

These reports gathered by the General Health Bureau of New York are typical of scores of others and indicate to the bureau that the public drinking glass is soon to be listed among the obsolete institutions.

FIRST HOME OF BANK

INTERIOR OF NEW BUILDING

In the recent enlargement of the Kingston Savings Bank the Trustees of the Bank have furnished to the depositors of the Bank a larger, more commodious and more convenient place for transacting business.

The depositors, who really are the owners of the Bank, are entitled to these conveniences which have been conservatively furnished to them.

A Savings Bank differs from what is known as a discount Bank or a Trust Company in that the net earnings belong to the depositors and are carried to the surplus of the Bank, the property of the depositors, and add to the security of the deposits and not paid in dividends to stockholders.

There is a broad distinction between a Savings Bank and other institutions in that a Savings Bank is what its name implies, while in other institutions it is a business enterprise.

None of the Trustees receive a salary other than those who give their time and assist in the management of the bank.

Electric Signs, Sewers and Band

Variety of Matters Before Public Works Board—May Have Band Concerts This Summer—Applications for Electric Signs—To Build New Sewers.

The board of public works held a busy session Tuesday evening at the city hall which was attended by a large delegation of women. So large was the attendance that the meeting was held in the common council chambers so that all who attended might have seats. The board transacted a large amount of business. Mayor Morris Block presided with Commissioners Chandler, Feesenden, Greenwell and Rafferty present.

Summer Band Concerts.

A communication from Harry Maisenhelder was read in which he offered to furnish nine band concerts during the months of July and August at a cost of $810 for the series. He wrote that each concert would cost $90 for a band of twenty-three pieces.

The board was in favor of band concerts here this summer and referred the proposition to the committee on public parks with power to arrange for a series of concerts with Mr. Maisenhelder or with another band if a lower rate could be had.

Petitions for Sewers.

Petitions for the construction of a sewer in Tetjen avenue and on the Boulevard were read and referred to the street committee and superintendent of report at the next meeting.

Street Employes Make Request.

A petition was read from a number of the street employes asking that they be allowed to work but a half day on Saturday and receive a full day's pay for the five hours. The board was of the opinion that the request should be tabled as the men were now working only eight hours at good pay, and that many of them had been put to work on the street force as they could not obtain work elsewhere. The petition was tabled.

Hartman Complains.

N. Hartman sent in a communication stating that as Ann street was not curbed or guttered that his cellar has had quite some water in it lately and asking that some action be taken to remedy conditions. The communication was referred to Superintendent Van Keuren with power.

Want Street Signs.

Requests for the erection of electric street signs in front of their places of business were received from.

E. J. Barton of 66 Crown street; M. Gassool of 9 Main street who desired to remove present sign to his new location at 298 Clinton avenue, Herbert J. Swarthoudt, 348 Broadway; A. H. Todd, 261 Fair street; Harvey C. Sammons, 746 Broadway; and Frank L. Brown, 523 Broadway.

All were referred to superintendent with power.

Sewer Ordinances.

City Engineer Hallinan submitted ordinances for the construction of sewers in Progress street; South Wall street and Winchell avenue, and on Greenkill avenue. The three ordinances were adopted.

A Flag Pole Holder.

E. Winter's Sons of 326 Wall street requested permission to install a new kind of flag pole holder in front of the store. The request was granted.

Wants Gas Tank.

Ben Israel of 528 Broadway requested permission to install a gas pump at the curb in front of his place. It was referred to the street committee and superintendent.

Numbering of Buildings.

There are many house numbers throughout the city that are so numbered that they are confusing. The matter came up for discussion and it was decided that the question of numbering of buildings be referred to the common council with the request that action be taken.

Removing Trees.

After some discussion of the tree situation in the city Commissioner Chandler offered a resolution that hereafter when the city removes a dangerous tree by cutting it down that the property owner must dispose of it after it had been felled. The property owner will also be requested to plant a new tree when an old one is removed.

Dwyer's Clay Bank.

The Dwyer Brothers have a clay bank on North street and there have been many complaints that it interferes with traffic by sliding over the Willite. The board discussed the matter thoroughly and decided that the Dwyers should erect a retaining wall. The matter was referred to the city engineer, superintendent and Corporation Counsel Jenkins to take it up with the Dwyers.

Manor Place Deed.

A deed to the city for Manor Place was referred to the street committee to report at the next meeting.

Other matters taken up will be found elsewhere.

Defective Vision

Defective vision of pupils in the public schools of this county costs the taxpayers at least $150,000,000 every year, according to reports of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America. This is due to the fact that many students are compelled to take two or more years of a single grade because faulty vision has made them backward in their work.

Performance

Over three mountain ranges—'round a thousand sharp turns—at a speed so terrific as to smash all previous records in a dash of 1558 miles!

And without once adjusting brakes!

That was an incident to the phenomenal performance of Rickenbacker Six when Cannon Ball Baker drove from Canada to Mexico in 40 hours 57 minutes—total elapsed time.

Imagine what must have been the service demanded of those 4-wheel brakes!

Baker insists that it was brakes that made the record.

For while he did drive 72 miles per hour on straight stretches — others before him had been able to do that.

Only by holding an higher average speed, could he hope to lower the former record.

That called for brakes—ability to de-celerate quickly at turns—then get away again with the least loss of time.

Brakes must be absolutely dependable—that means mechanically operated.

They must not grab—but slow down the car smoothly as well as quickly. That calls for internal, expanding brakes—rigid shoes of equal dimensions.

In his Rickenbacker motor this great driver had plenty of power, and amazingly quick get-away.

Add to that the wonderful efficiency and the absolute certainty of his brakes, and you have the formula for this and all the other records that Baker has lowered in this car.

Drive this Rickenbacker Six yourself — it will be a revelation to you.

Pierrott at The High School

The met of the director of the dramatic department of Kingston High School is perhaps variety. The program for the past year and a half has included Jerome K. Jerome's comedy of manners, "Fanny and the Servant Problem," a Tarkington travesty, "The Intimate Strangers;" a mystery play, "Grumpy;" and now, in rehearsal, Granville Barker's fantasy, "Prunella," which will be shown Friday evening, May 29.

Of the Italian stage traditions, "Paola and Francesca" no doubt leads in tragic force and in beauty of reflective poetry; "Punch and Judy" in grotesquerie, homely humor and domestic barb and thrust; but for charm and nerve and madness of imagination and whim Pierrot and Pierrette are still the favored darlings of playright and gallery. The foster parent in the present instance has added color to his theme by the use of contrasts that are whimsical yet realistic, romantic and yet oddly joined with elements most prosaic. Prunella lives in a trim and prim garden that has known only hours of quaint routine and convention, dictated stint and plan. Pierrot lives among his mad, noisy, effete coterie of players who know his sensitiveness and lyric power only as he has expressed it in jaunty sophistication, in dazzle mongering. Prunella's gardeners are cockney and philosophic, curious, and afterwards didactic. It is Pierrette who swings the revel into pure faerie.

The Dramatic Club plans to make emphatic its delight in the fantastic quality of the play in the handling of costume and setting. Prunella's house is being constructed under the supervision of Fred Van Etten and Prunella thinks it will be the greatest vermillion and yellow flower her garden grows. The mummers evidence abandon in gaiety in the choice of their masquerades. The Home Making Department is perhaps cutting the patterns at the rise of the cresent moon with the shears of Pan's goats.

'Way for their majesties clowns—Scaramel and Kennel, Hawk and Mouth!

Coat of Lovely Fabric With Beige Fox Collar

This coat, made of a popular fabric, is practical enough for general wear. The collar of beige fox gives the needed touch of color; the low belt line and slightly flared skirt accent the smartness of the garment.

Colors Add Interest to Fashions of Season

Color is more important this season than at any time since the war. This statement has been made before, but it cannot be too much insisted upon, for the vogue for color brings with it such important consequences. In a season when many shades are popular, it is vital that matching shades be obtainable in hats and accessories, in silks, woolens and trimmings; and the vogue for certain colors is quite apt to influence the neutral tone ranges of shoes, hosiery and gloves.

It is very difficult this spring to pick out certain colors and say definitely that they are leading shades. The following sums up the opinion of a correspondent on color trends in which no one shade can be placed at the head of the list.

Blues are very important, for both day and evening, ranging from navy, through royal, "drapeau" or French flag blue, cornflower, China, nattier to Madonna. These are well balanced blues with little leaning toward other shades in their tone. Periwinkle is the one blue that borders on another shade, in its case toward the mauve range, that is much in evidence, and one sees a great deal of it.

The mauve-violet range, tending more toward red than blue, is in favor, particularly for evening. One sees a great deal of mauvy pink and cyclamen, and of deeper lie-de-vin shades.

The greens are mostly in the yellow caste, and there are a great many both for day and evening. Those for day wear range from light grass green to fine woolens like covert coating, to a bright shade that is almost Irish green; while for evening, the range includes grass greens, pistaches, menthe and chartreuse.

Certain houses indorse clear reds, and one or two sponsor yellow, so there is a possibility that the vogue of such a house may result in a vogue for one of those colors; so far they are less generally seen than the other shades mentioned, although no color is ignored in the showings.

Tassels Important in Fashions This Season

So many articles of dress are finished with tassels that the tassel has come to have a significant part of its own. Infinitesimal containers of cosmetics, cigarettes and so on have often a large tassel to balance the wrist cord at the top. Some of the newest purse-bags and envelope purses are trimmed with fringe or finished with long silk tassels.

The tassels introduced in costumes are huge this season. A soft girdle finished with a large tassel at each end adds charm to an informal cloth frock or an afternoon gown of satin or crepe. In evening dress tassels of silk or of pearl, crystal or metal beads are used effectively on some of the newest gowns, and one conspicuously handsome evening wrap has two enormous tassels of silk and gold thread to finish scarf ends that fall from each shoulder at the back.

Chiffon Feathers Used as Border, Like Coq

Femininely elegant coats of georgette or chiffon follow the tailored mode of the moment, but soften their outline by means of a border of chiffon feathers, which is chiffon cut in feather-like pieces to resemble coq. This trimming was seen on a black chiffon cape, and round a rust-colored chiffon coat, and again in an entire flat bow in black-and-white chiffon, thus effectively simulating a feathered scarf.

The chiffon coat to accompany the lace or chiffon gown undoubtedly promises well this summer, and with it this mode of trimming will be seen and more developed.

DRESSING UP THE THROAT.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

So universal has the wearing of the shoulder flower become, that chic French women contrive to drop their evening coat, so that the flower will not be crushed; they have even taken to wearing it under one arm, a graceful arrangement, suggested by the shawl, of course.

Just to be contrary, instead of baring your throat, wind a maline scarf about it, and bow it under one ear; it is a fetching fashion which need not necessarily interfere with one's pearls. Of course, one must have pearls, and is entitled to any arrangement of them which a momentary whim and a close study of one's contour will suggest.

Just at present, most—in fact all—of the embellishment is below, rather than above, the face—headdresses being of minor interest here and abroad.

Women continue to wear tiny jeweled animal charms, and indeed one may well be superstitious about them. It's unlucky not to be smart!

For your fine things, of course—your precious silk underthings, your silk stockings, your laces.

NOW the Big New Package

All your things last longer when Lux-washed, so—Lux for the family laundry as well as for the sheer, delicate fabrics.

A single teaspoonful does the dishes—no more rough red hands!

Today women are using Lux all over the house! In the bathroom, of course, where for years their fine things have been whisked clean in the basin.

Lux left their hands so smooth and soft—they tried it for washing dishes. Gone were the rough, red, dishpan hands!

Each year clothes and household linens get nicer—more expensive. They deserved the same care as the finest fabrics—and were washed ten times as often! So women began doing the family laundry with Lux and were repaid in longer service from everything. With Lux, not even this job left their hands red and sensitive.

So many, many uses—upstairs and down—women wanted a bigger package. So now you may have the regular size or the big new package for general use.

Demand Aid of National Guard

Residents of Vermont Town Petition Governor for National Guard Troops to Join in Hunt For Abductor of Chatterton Girl.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Granville, Vt., April 29.—Calling out national guard troops to join in the hunt for Earl Woodward, young ex-convict and abductor of 11-year-old Lucille Chatterton, was demanded on all sides today.

Petitions, signed by scores of residents of this district, were forwarded to Governor Franklin S. Billings.

The region where Woodward is believed to be hiding is so vast it was pointed out, that only a large force of searchers can hope to make a clean sweep.

With a reward of $200 dead or alive hanging over his head, the ex-convict was being hunted today by six armed posses. Likewise, farmers in the Bull Run section of Northfield to which it was hoped Woodward was being driven were armed and ready to receive the kidnapper of the little Chatterton girl.

It was thought that Woodward might try to reach the home of his foster mother in Northfield and if he did so he was promised a warm reception by the farmers on the outskirts of the town.

A long search for the man was in prospect. He carried provisions enough for a two weeks' stay in the woods and he knows almost every inch of the territory. Some thought he would abandon the child in his flight but this theory was scouted by the searchers who know him.

Walter Chatterton, father of the missing girl, who collapsed after 85 hours' search without food and sleep, rejoined the searching party today. Chatterton declared he would shoot Woodward on sight.

King a Prisoner

King Boris of Bulgaria is virtually a prisoner in his castle in Sofia while war clouds loom ominously in the Balkans, according to news despatches from Belgrade. The King, it is reported, has been imprisoned in the palace by the order of General Lazareff because the Nationalist military party objected to Boris's request that Premier Tzankoff resign to permit formation of a coalition cabinet.

WALLKILL.

Wallkill, April 29.—The attendance at Plattekill Grange, No. 923, was not as large as usual, due to the inclement weather which prevailed, nevertheless an interesting meeting was held. A movement was begun to raise funds for the repair work in the hall. A dance will be held May 8th, the proceeds for which will be sent out this week. An entertainment will be given later, in charge of the lecturer, Albert Beaver. Further announcement will be made at a later date.

The program committee favored with vocal solos: Miss Dutcher and Mr. Terrell, and readings. The refreshment committee served ice cream salad and sandwiches of all kinds very bountifully.

At the next meeting there will be initiation of candidates. The program will be in charge of the lecturer. The relief board consist will be Lucile and Gladys DeVall, Michael Doyle, Mrs. George Doyle, Ola Decker, G. W. Martin, Mary Deane.

Find Short Leads Will Work Better

Parallel Wires Should Be Avoided in Hooking Up Receiver.

There is a right and a wrong way to do everything. This is particularly applicable to radio. Most trouble encountered in a receiver can be traced directly or indirectly to the method of construction. The most difficult feature of this is the wiring. Every set has what is termed "an invisible circuit."

This is the flow of energy that is created between two wires carrying different frequencies when they are too close to one another. Particularly is this so when they are parallel. From this it would seem that the only way to avoid this is to run all wires at angles to one another. This cannot be done when the set is wired up with square corners. The best and most efficient way to wire a set is to make connections directly from terminal to terminal in the shortest possible manner.

This not only prevents parallel wires but it also reduces the resistance of the set as a whole, further increasing its efficiency. For this a flexible wire of several strands and about 16-gauge may be used. It should be insulated. Figure 1 shows a connection made directly from terminal to terminal and Figure 2 shows the same connection made with square corners. Note the difference.

Squeaks and Squeals and How to Stop Them

W-h-e-e-e-e! Also S-q-u-a-a-w-k! This is about how the noises that sometimes come out of the loud speaker or earphones ought to look on paper. But it is difficult to give an adequate description on paper of their astounding diversity and their excruciating effect when some particularly fine music is coming in.

Most squeaks and squeals can be removed. Here are some of the sources and remedies:

1. Neighboring installations. Oscillating receivers in the vicinity of a set will cause noises. This is the hardest sort of interference to overcome, but it can be done to some extent by the use of a blocking tube circuit, and a loop antenna.

2. Faulty connections. All connections should be electrically correct.

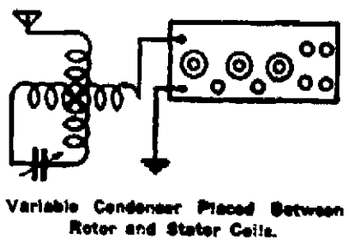

3. Internal oscillations. These may be caused by the position of audio frequency transformers with respect to each other; by failure to ground proper transformer terminals; or by having grid and plate leads too close, or parallel to each other.

4. Defective tubes. Only standard tubes should be used, and they should not be injured by burning too brightly.

5. Battery trouble. When the storage battery gets too low, the set will go into and out of oscillation at various points on the dial, producing howls and distorted reception. The moral here is, keep the battery charged, and this involves the use of a good charger.

Split Variometer Used in Wave-Trap Circuit

It has been found that one of the best wave traps may be made with the use of a split variometer. The illustration shows how the variometer was used in connection with a 11-plate variable condenser placed between the rotor and stator coils. The aerial is attached to one end of the stator coil and the wire leading to the set is attached to the open end of the rotor coil.—Radio Digest.

Things to Know About Operation of Chargers

The instruction sheets which accompany many types of chargers for use on storage A and B batteries direct that the battery be disconnected from the receiving set while the charger is in use. This is because there is a chance that a short-circuit may occur through the grounded circuits of the receiver. The antenna circuit is, of course, insulated from the ground and if you connect a .5 mfd. condenser in series with the ground lead, your whole set will be insulated so that you will not have to disconnect the batteries while you are charging them. The condenser will not affect your reception.

The Delco-Light Millions Have Waited For

F.O.B. DAYTON, O.

AS THE world's largest manufacturers of farm electric plants, we have been working for months on the development of a lighting plant that could be sold at a radically lower price—a price so low that it would bring electricity within the reach of every farm home in America.

We knew that a million farm homes were ready for electricity—that a million farmers realized the money-saving, time-saving value of electricity—that a million farm women had learned that electricity would lighten the burdens of farm life and bring new happiness and new opportunities to their families.

A Price That Is Revolutionary

We realized that a small reduction in price would not be enough. It must be revolutionary—drastic. And we wanted to be able to offer this plant on very easy terms—so that every farm home, whether owned or rented, could have the benefits that are so much appreciated on the 200,000 farms where Delco-Light is now in use.

And Now It's Ready

Today the new Delco-Light is ready. It is more than we had hoped. Quantity production—modern engineering—millions of dollars worth of machinery—research and invention—have produced the Delco-Light that can make all farms electrically lighted farms.

A 600-Watt Non-Storage-Battery Plant

The new plant is a genuine Delco-Light in every respect—full 600-watt capacity, strong, sturdily built, economical in operation. It is equipped with a standard Delco starter and an economical starting battery. And its price is only $195 f. o. b. Dayton—the lowest price and the greatest value ever offered in a Delco-Light electric plant.

Complete Installation at a Remarkably Small Cost

In addition to this, special arrangements have been made whereby the Delco-Light dealer in your community will install your plant and wire your house for five lights, to be located wherever you specify. You will receive with the plant five beautiful spun-brass lighting fixtures complete with bulbs.

And all of this—plant, installation, wiring, fixtures, everything ready to turn on the lights—will cost you only $53, in addition to the price of the plant itself.

A Small Down Payment —Balance on Easy Terms

Finally, we have arranged that this new low cost for Delco-Light, completely installed, can be paid on terms so easy that anyone can take advantage of them. The total cost is only $248, including freight (a little more west of the Mississippi). But you make only a small down payment. The balance is payable on easy terms, arranged to suit your convenience.

Ask for Details

Never before has such an offer been made. Never before has Delco-Light cost so little and been so easy to buy. It means that any farm home—your home—can have Delco-Light today.

At the bottom of this advertisement appear the name and address of the Delco-Light dealer for your community. Call on him, write, or telephone for full information—specifications of the plant, illustrations of the fixtures that come with it, details of our complete installation and wiring plan, and the figures that show how easily you can now get Delco-Light.

FINDS ESKIMOS THRIVE UNDER U. S. TUTELAGE

Danish Explorer, After Making a Survey of Greenland, Praises American Methods.

Copenhagen, Denmark.—American methods of treating and caring for the Eskimos were urged upon Denmark by Dr. Knud Rasmussen, the Danish explorer, in a recent lecture here before the upper and lower houses of parliament. Doctor Rasmussen has just returned to Denmark after an extensive survey of Eskimo life in Greenland, Canada and Alaska.

American Eskimos, the explorer said, were better educated than those living in Canada and Greenland, spoke good English and in every way demonstrated their ability to meet the white man on his own ground.

"The Americans are absolutely right in their viewpoint," the speaker said, "that as soon as a primitive race has made even the slightest acquaintance with civilization, even in its crudest form, it is impossible to preserve the primitivity of such a race. It is then far better to make these men and women into ordinary American citizens, with the citizens' privileges and duties."

Doctor Rasmussen declared that the importance of the work of the American bureau of education, as represented by the many schools for natives in Alaska, could never be overemphasized. American school teachers, he said, not only taught the natives the English language but helped them in many other ways, such as in the establishment of co-operative stores and the carrying on of infant-welfare work.

He criticized the policy of the Danish government in attempting to keep the Greenland Eskimo away from any contact with the white man, and pointed out that while the Greenland Eskimo lived in a state of primitive squalor, it was no strange thing for the Alaskan natives to own motorboats and large reindeer herds, and to be supplied with the most modern equipment wherewith to carry on his family life and business.

One fault with the American system, Doctor Rasmussen said, was that often the Alaskan native was not taught properly how to read and write his native tongue, and he urged that this be given particular attention in the case of the Greenland Eskimo. Reindeer, he said, had proved a great source of wealth to the Alaskan natives, and he urged that herds be established in Greenland wherever possible.

Kansas Adopts Official Flag With Sunflower

Topeka, Kas.—Kansas, the last of the states without an official flag, is now ready to add its standard to the collection on display at the Post-Office department in Washington. After a controversy extending over ten years, the state legislature has adopted a design proffered by the Woman's Relief corps.

The new banner is of solid blue, bearing at its center a sunflower, whose petals enclose and surround the state seal. Above the sunflower is the ward "Kansas."

Thus was the sunflower given official approval as the state flower along with the state banner, and this year, too, the meadow lark was elected state bird by the children of Kansas.

Wheat and the sunflower vied with each other for the honor when the legislators debated the adoption of the flag.

Selection of a flag design has been a controversial issue in every legislature for a decade. The two rival patriotic organizations, the Daughters of the American Republic and the Woman's Relief corps, Grand Army of the Republic auxiliary, have contended with every legislature for the adoption of their designs.

Bill for Trousseau Starts Investigation

New York.—The carelessness of a clerk in sending a bill to an old address of John G. Smothergill, thirty-six, and the action of John G. in marrying two women led to his arrest on complaint of both.

A newspaper advertisement describing a woman as lonely and anxious to find "an eligible young man" started the trouble which brought Smothergill to jail. Smothergill was interested by the advertisement and, though he had a wife and child in Brooklyn, he answered it and quickly married the advertiser, Miss Irmis Steele, formerly of East Chicago.

After establishing her in an apartment here, Smothergill opened an account for her in a women's garment store. In an effort to collect for the trousseau bought there, a letter was sent to him at his old address. It fell into the hands of his first wife, who then discovered Mrs. Smothergill No. 2.

The second wife on hearing of the existence of the first showed little emotion for herself, but sympathized with the first Mrs. Smothergill and "washed her hands" of their mutual husband. The two then joined forces and had him arrested for bigamy.

London Pays Dearly for Its Days of Fog

The infinite variety of English weather has no worse plague than fog, it is said, and apart from the discomfort caused the actual loss suffered by the community through the fog is said to be immense. The London Nation and Athenaeum quotes the "Smoke Abatement society" as putting the figure at $5,000,000 for one day, and this weekly observes, according to the Literary Digest:

"This may be an excessive estimate, but there can be no doubt that it would pay the nation to spend a great deal of money to remedy the evil, especially when we remember that even on foggless days we allow sunlight of infinite value to be intercepted by the pall of smoke which overhangs our great towns.

"The climax of absurdity is reached when we have to organize special sunlight treatment, in some cases, with rays artificially generated, in order to cure diseases caused by this unnatural darkness. The classic instance of Pittsburgh proves that the evil can be remedied once a community is really alive to its seriousness.

"There are considerable difficulties to be faced, of which the most difficult to deal with would almost certainly be that incorrigible offender, proud in evil-doing, the domestic fire; but there are few social reforms which would more quickly produce a rich harvest in increased health and happiness for the ordinary citizen."

Method of Obtaining New Plant From Old

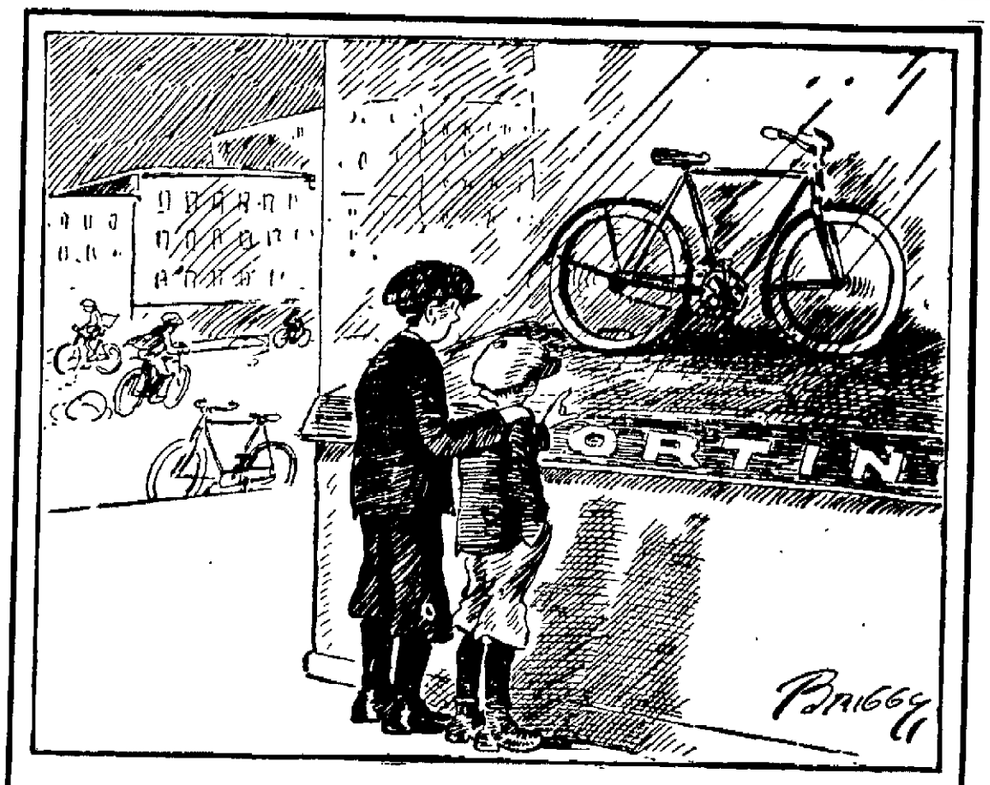

A simple method of propagating the rubber plant is by mossing. A branch is selected with ripe wood, or in the case of a lanky old plant with a long, bare stem the top may be rooted and cut off, in either case making use of a cluster of leaves that will make a well-shaped young plant.

Make a slanting cut upward half way through the stem with a sharp knife. Slip a match or other small stick to hold the wound open. Then wrap moss around it. You can get a little sphagnum moss from any florist or seedsman. It should make a knob about as big as one's fist. Tie it in place with string and keep it moist but not dripping wet. In a few weeks many new roots will have been formed just above the cut. Then the moss can be removed, the stem severed at a point below the roots and the plant potted in the usual way.

The operation is best performed in a room where the temperature remains at nearly 70 degrees and where there is considerable moisture in the air; in other words, the kitchen.

HAD FORMED PLANS TO GIVE UP PARIS

General Harbord Tells of Contemplated Action.

Chaumont, France, Oct. 10.—1917.—Repington (of the London Times) and Bacon were talking tonight of the terrifying days of 1914 in Paris when the Germans were approaching. The French government left the capital, believing its capture certain—a move which, in the light of the later success on the Marne, has left the members of that government politically explaining all the remainder of their lives, Major General Harbord writes in the Saturday Evening Post.

Our American ambassador, Herrick, seems to have risen in those troubled days to a full appreciation of his opportunity to be of use, and his memory is very popular among the French of all classes—as indeed is that of our own Maj. Robert Bacon.

Herrick was in a sense given charge of Paris by Poincare at the time the government left the city, and was the representative of the only power whose ambassador could probably command the attention and respect of the Germans if they entered the city—as everybody thought they were sure to do.

This has given rise to a story, alluded to by Repington tonight, that Poincare and Delcasse asked the American ambassador and the Swedish minister of the day to go out and negotiate the surrender of Paris with the Germans. Paris and her art treasures in the hands of the Germans is a fearful thing to contemplate in the light of three years' history of German war methods.

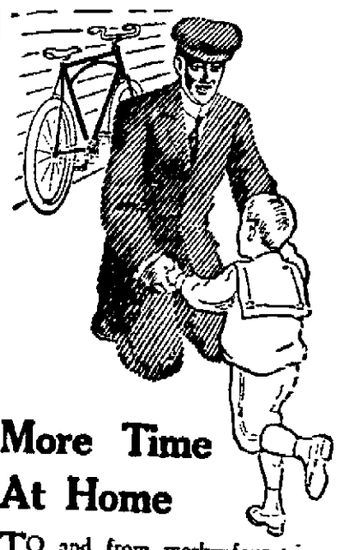

They had, it is said, announced an intention to burn Paris one-fourth at a time to compel the surrender of the French armies in the field. General Galliени, a gallant old soldier in command of the antiquated defense of Paris, fully appreciated the situation and was prepared to do all that could humanly be done with the insufficient force at his command.

No small number of the guns of the defense of Paris lay unmounted in their emplacements—which sounds like the history of the defense of Washington instead of Paris. Galliени and his command were ready to turn the defense guns toward the city if the Germans forced their way past them. All this was happily averted by the battle of the Marne, and Paris was saved.

Bacon and Repington doubt if the story is true.

Orphan's Pathetic Dreams

That the dreams of orphans in institutions center about their one common experience, the loss of parents and home, is the result of an investigation by Dr. Kate Gordon of the University of Southern California. Of 105 children questioned, 90 admitted dreaming and the dreams of fully half of these may be expressed in the typical statements "about mother" or "father came to get me." The dreams of another 10 per cent suggest fear of various sorts, as of tonsil operations. These fears may be regarded as "negative wishes." About eight children, or 9 per cent, dreamed of toys, candy, money, etc., while a lesser number dreamed of religion.

Doctor Gordon's research seems to support the psychanalytic view that dreams are one way people like our wishes which are unfilled in reality. And from a practical standpoint it indicates that institutional life does not appeal to the child as a substitute for the intimate care of parents.

Art of Dining Out

Dining out is an art. It is not learned in a day; and as the right guests at a table are as important as the food and drink if not more so—care must be taken in their selection, writes Charles Hanson Towne, in Harper's. The hostess who gives no thought to the placing of those around her board is a social fool. She does not deserve even the modicum of success. For when people are to be intimate with one another for two hours, imprisoned at an inelastic table, there is a serious aspect of the situation which requires foresight and a profound knowledge of human nature. Many dinners fail because there has been no diagram made of spiritual needs.

Queer "Felicitation"

Ignorant of English, a Frenchman wished to telegraph his congratulations to an English friend on his marriage.

He wrestled with the dictionary until the happy couple were fairly on their honeymoon, and by that time he had evolved the following: "May you be very happy in the workhouse!"

His friend was about to demand an explanation, when it dawned upon him that what was meant was: "May you be happy in the union." [For the benefit of American readers it should be stated that all English workhouses (or institutions for the poor) are known as union workhouses.]

How Excessive Taxes Blight a Nation's Life

Productive Effort Stops if Government Takes Undue Share of Profits, Says Treasury Official—Wealth in Russia Fled Before the Taxgatherer—Men in America Prefer Golf to Giving Fruits of Three Days' Work a Week to Income Taxes.

THE blighting effects of excessive taxation, leading to a nation's economic destruction, are described in the current issue of the American Bankers Association Journal by Garrard B. Winston, Under-secretary of the Treasury. Citing possible effects on the Ford Motor Car Company, he declares that "the value is so large and its ownership so centered it is conceivable that collection of inheritance taxes may check, if not destroy that unit of policy which has created and expanded that industry and thus prevent its future prosperity. Of what avail, then, is it to any government if it collects one hundred million dollars once in estate taxes and destroys a source of income upon which it can rely for revenue year after year.

"Success of the Ford Company does not mean simply that Mr. Ford and his son have grown wealthy. It means employment of tens of thousands of men and women; that mines, forests, railroads and vessels are brought into use; that the public has received an efficient and inexpensive means of transportation; that the farm is in touch with the city, and the worker with his office." Mr. Winston says in part:

Wealth Flees Oppression

"Upon first impression it might appear that a nation could take all of the earnings of its citizens or all of their property. The Soviet government proposed to appropriate all instrumentalities of trade and commerce. Yet, when the state reached out to grasp this wealth, it disappeared and left nothing but a few tangible objects, such as gold and jewels, which were easily transported to other countries. Wealth in Russia ceased to exist.

"If income tax rates are placed so high that capital in productive business no longer gives a net return commensurate with the risk, capital will go out of the productive business, lie idle, go abroad, go into tax-exempt securities, or find other ways of avoiding the tax. If income tax rates are so excessive that a man of ability finds he must work more than three days a week for the government he will become discouraged and decide that the result is not worth the effort. Less income will be produced and less will be realized from the tax.

"Recently a letter came to the Treasury from a small farmer. He owned a few acres which in 1913 were assessed at $900 and on which a tax of $13 was levied. In 1924 the assessed value increased to $3,200 and the tax to $123, but the farm failed to produce any more. Taxes exceeded the rental value of the land and more than the net earnings of the property were taken by the state. The farm was abandoned and now produces no tax.

"Often there come to notice cases where a particular improvement is not made, or a particular business not started, because after deducting taxes the risk exceeds the value of the expected return. Men have dropped business, spent their winters in Florida and their summers abroad because what they are permitted to retain under present tax rates is not worth the labor they must give to acquire it. They prefer golf to the further development of the country.

Unscientific Taxes Destroy a Nation

"Unscientific methods of taxation may actually destroy the very earnings or property which it should be the principal interest of the government to foster. When it reaches the limits of what is known as its taxable capacity, a nation has begun to die. If taxes are raised too high, a country will slowly but surely destroy itself. It will use for daily consumption the seed corn on which its future life depends, and the spirit of initiative and adventure in its people will finally disappear. One or more of three things happen: The quantity of consumption is cut down, which means a lowering of the standard of living; or capital accumulations for extensions, improvements and new undertakings must diminish, resulting in a slowing up of progress and increasing eventually of taxable revenue; or, thirdly, a slackening of effort on the part of the citizen will take place when too large a part of his earnings are taken in taxes.

"The effort in taxation should be to find the tax which will continue to raise money over a period of years invariably, with an excessive tax, the yield has fallen off year by year, while each rate reduction is reflected in an increase of taxable income. If the Treasury is to be assured a steady issuance of revenue, our citizens must prosper. If they are to prosper, the appropriation by the state of the earnings and property must be based upon economically sound principles."

PLOT AGAINST LIFE OF BRITISH SECRETARY.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 29.—Authorities have discovered a plot against the life of Austen Chamberlain, British secretary of foreign affairs, the Central News said today.

The plot against Chamberlain was developed, Central News asserted, "in an European capital well known as the center of the plot of a recent bomb murder conspiracy, and was believed to be of Communistic origin."

Scotland Yard offered Chamberlain special protection. Their prompt action was believed to have averted the possibility of the plotters carrying out their plan.

While authorities admitted the authenticity of the plot, they said they were not over estimating its importance yet were taking all precautions.

The foreign office declined to comment upon the plot.

MOVEMENT TO CANCEL DOLLAR COMPANY'S CONTRACT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 29.—In a new flare up of the United States shipping board row, a movement was launched today to cancel the Dollar Company's operating contract on five government passenger liners in the Seattle Oriental run.

Just when official Washington regarded the turbulent shipping controversy as settled by court decision, upholding sale of five president liners to the Dollar interests, a resumption of hostilities was threatened from a new quarter.

It came from board members who want the government to take back the Seattle liners, now under lease to Dollar, through fear of increased losses due to control of the combined fleets by one corporation.

Features at Boy Scout Dance

Great interest is being shown among the Boy Scouts of Ulster county as regards the "fire by friction" contest, as already nine Scouts have signified their intention of entering the contest and as this activity of scouting is one of the most interesting in so far as it takes a great deal of practice and patience to master it, the scout that win can certainly be excused for throwing out his chest.

A silver cup is offered to the troop winning this contest. This cup is offered by Charles A. Warren, the sporting goods dealer. The troop winning first place for his troop will himself receive an order on S. Cohen's Sons for a new scout uniform, while the scout winning second place will receive a cooking kit and for the boy taking third place a scout knife.

Another interesting extra attraction will be the radio booth where the most up-to-date receiving sets will be on display. Do not fail to pay this booth a visit. It is said very attractive souvenirs will be given out there and you want to get yours if you are interested in WDBZ.

These are other entertaining features but the one that is going to appeal to the folks in general are those two Kingston orchestra, when they get started playing that dance music of theirs. Who are they? Why, Maisenhelder's WDBZ orchestra and Zucca's Singing Orchestra. You don't think the scouts would send out of the city for an orchestra when the best is right here. Not on your life!

Don't let anybody "kid" you about this dance being postponed as it positively will take place on Friday evening, May 1st, and the price is one dollar and no war tax.

Kolb Injured By a Buzz Saw

Pine Street Man Badly Mangled in Mt. Marion Saw Mill Tuesday Evening—Left Arm Amputated at Shoulder—Is in Benedictine Hospital.

Edward Kolb, 25 years old of No 149 Pine street, is in the Benedictine Hospital with one side of his body badly mangled as the result of being caught in a buzz saw at his brother's saw mill in Mt. Marion about 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening He was rushed to the hispital here when extricated and to save his life it was necessary to amputate the left arm at the shoulder This afternoon it was reported at the hospital that his condition was fairly comfortable.

Mr. Kolb had gone to Mt. Marion to assist his brother in the saw mill While engaged in operating the buzz saw he thought it did not work as freely as it should and in leaning over to investigate his sweater caught and he was dragged onto the saw Before he was extricated the left side of his body was badly mangled.

A hurry call for an ambulance was sent to this city and he was brought to the hospital in the Grogan ambulance where he was attended by Dr. John O'Leary, Dr. William O'Leary and Dr. John F. Larkin.

$20,000 Fire At Kerhonkson

Five Buildings Destroyed by Blaze Early Tuesday—Property of Morris Simonosky and Operated as Summer Boarding Establishment.

Five large buildings, comprising the entire boarding establishment of Morris Simonosky at Kerhonkson, were totally destroyed by fire Tuesday morning causing a loss estimated at $20,000. The blaze starting from unknown causes, had gained such headway when discovered at 12:30 o'clock that efforts to save some of the buildings proved futile.

The boarding establishment, comprising three dwellings, a large dining hall and a barn, have been unoccupied all winter. Simonosky has been residing in another dwelling located about 350 feet from the scene of the fire, which was discovered by Mrs Simonosky.

The five buildings, located within 10 feet of one another, were a mass of flames when the blaze was discovered. A light breeze fanned the flames and volunteers who attempted to save part of the plant, were soon driven back by the heat of the flames.

Explosion Fatal To at Least One

Body Hardly Recognizable is Found After Explosion in Boston Rubber Shoe Company—Other Workers Not Accounted For.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Malden, Mass., April 29.—Explosion and fire in the varnish and cement house of the Boston Rubber Shoe Company today took a toll of one life, possibly more, injured six, threw 3,500 rubbers workers into a panic and rocked the factory district of this city.

Four hours after the explosion, one body, hardly recognizable, was dug from the ruins.

Company officials said one other man was missing but employes declared three others were to be accounted for.

Two hours after the explosion and fire, company officials said they thought two workmen in the building were injured but escaped. The men could not be located, however. A third man in the building, a visitor, was injured.

The cause of the explosion which shook the factory district was believed due to gasoline used in the cementing process of the rubber works.

The cement house is separated from the main factory buildings. Firemen were able to keep the flames inside the crumpled cement house, thus saving the plant.

As the wall of the cement house burst open with a roar those inside were hurled out in the debris.

Two alarms of fire were sounded and a call was sent for ambulances. Martin C. McMahon, the visitor, was taken to the hospital.

In the main factory building windows were shattered by falling bricks and there was a near panic among the 3,500 employes, mostly girls. Three men leaped from second story windows and were injured. Many were bruised in a wild rush for the exits.

Eye witnesses said that one workman was blown through the roof of the cement house and hurled against a brick wall thirty feet away.

The men reported by fellow workmen as missing were: Robert Stewart, Malden, foreman; John F. Nolan, Everett, Charles Moses and a fourth man.

Marvin McMahon of Revere, a visitor at the plant, was blown out with the front wall of the cement house. He was taken to Malden Hospital. Although seriously injured, he was expected to recover.

Property damage done was estimated at $100,000. The cement and varnish was used in both Malden and Melrose plants of the company.

The spread of fire, despite the recording of the factory and the city alarms, and the prompt arrival of the firemen hindered the search for bodies.

As the lower half of the roof went skyward, the walls fell out and windows in the main building were shattered.

In the rush from the main building according to officials of the company, the factory hands acquitted themselves with credit Self-control prevented a loss of life at the exits

A Wild Day Out on Location

By MAVERICK TERRELL

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

A GREAT many queer things have happened in the films; among others Kenneth Keith. Like the films, he was a bit of everything; good, bad and worse, and like Hollywood, limelight was the best thing he did

Keith ought to have been an ideal cowboy—he had been born and brought up in Chicago.

It had been an off day out on location Hoke Brooks, who was directing Keith in 'Where God's Country Begins,' hadn't been in the customary patient frame of mind.

Even Pawnee, Keith's faithful steed, had caught the drift of affairs and added his note; he stood on his ears when the camera counted on his standing on his white-stockinged feet, he bolted when he should have remained loyally by his master's ruined body, there at the bottom of the inevitable cliff, and he continually, despite Keith's spurs, faced the camera when he should have profiled neatly, as he had been painstakingly taught.

Even "Burnt-blanket" Tompkins, Keith's long-enduring double, was off his feed and rolled his cigarettes with two fingers!

This day had been worse than any other out on this particular location, which was up at Copper lake, and at three o'clock Brooks threw his hands up to the skies, called upon all the angels and any stray devils to witness the last ooze of his patience, and rushed away into the southern California forest to keep from doing murder or worse Five minutes later Kenneth Keith rushed hell-bent up the lone railroad track. It was the only direction left out of camp!

Registering hysteria plus, Keith disappeared around the cut.

The company, more impressed than usual, decided there was a fair chance that the double stall would preclude any more work that day Some of them went to sleep up against the bluff.

Young Keith tramped up the track in high dudgeon; everything and everybody got on his high-salaried nerves. He choked with anger and kept on walking. The day was unusually warm. Keith began to get a bit drowsy. He was very, very tired and he needed rest.

The film star came finally to a lonely switch, upon the sidetrack of which dejectly stood a lone box-car. The door was open and the floor was covered with invitingly clean straw; Keith was worn out. Brooks had seen to that! Kennith climbed in, parked himself comfortably in the heaped straw and fell sound asleep.

He awoke to the motion of the box-car. It was running away! Something had happened to the brakes; there was a grade and the car was running wild; Keith, fully awakened, tried to get to his feet. Impossible. He was bound and gagged. For the moment he thought he had lost his senses. Then he heard the hushed voices from out of the dark of the car. The door had been closed!

As long as he lives Kennith Keith will never forget the nightmare of that night; the first real sight he had of his fellow occupants of the car, in the light of the engine fire-box when they finally shot their way into the express car and blew open the express company safe. The robbers were all Mexicans—the worst looking pack of greasers Keith had ever seen, even in the films.

The holdup was over quickly, and the swag was carried to the cached horses, while one Mexican with a Winchester kept the crew under cover.

Kennith Keith, still bound and gagged, all the bravado out of him, was compelled none too gently to mount a horse and dash away with the train robbers. The Mexicans kept up a maddening speed but soon Keith, sore at heart and everywhere, heard not far behind them the inevitable pursuers.

It was a night of torture. It was as dark as indigo and they rode, pursued and pursuers, like madmen. Once a limb knocked Keith off his horse but a Mexican, riding behind, picked him up as neat as a sombrero on the ground. God's nobleman was about all in. He remembered no more.

When he came to himself, he was in the same box-car, on the same switch, and it was the break of day. Cursing himself for the poorness of his dreaming imagination, strangely sore in body and utterly fagged out, he returned to the company camp.

Hoke Brooks finished the picture under smoother conditions; everyone, everything seemed to go better, especially the star, who shelved his temperament for another day. Keith acted so humanly that he frightened two or three of his company into the best acting they had ever done.

Two weeks later, in the Old Man's inner office, at the Paragon studio, Hoke Brooks got the surprise of his directing life; the Old Man was complimenting him on the new picture.

"Some caviar, Hoke," he wheezed. "Knock 'em cuckoo. Best picture Keith ever pulled. Just signed him up for another year this morning. Got that bird where I want him; hog-tied! Thank Gawd! Keith's about the last of the sugar-cured hams left in Hollywood! Hoke, it was worth every cent taking the guff out of him. Lemme see: three thousand, thirty-six fifty; bam! One week's salary! Cheap at the price; greasers, trails and all. Say, Brookey, honest y'think he will believe it was a dream, huh?"

MONTREAL TO WASHINGTON LIMITED IS DERAILED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Royalton, Vermont, April 29.—Several hunderd passengers and trainmen were shaken up when the Washingtonian, the fast Montreal to Washington, D. C. Limited, was derailed here today.

Passengers were thrown from their berths and trainmen were hurled into the aisles as a journal on the locomotive snapped. None of those on board the train reported injuries.

The train was travelling over the Central Railroad of Vermont line. Traffic in both directions was held up for some time.

Most of the passengers were in their berths at the time of the derailment.

The locomotive and tender were were the only sections of the train to leave the rails. Sleepers were dug up for a distance of 12 feet from the Royalton depot to a spot in front of the Congregational Church in the direction of South Royalton.

The limited carried a mail car, a baggage car and five Pullmans.

The Montrealer, north bound, was held up for several hours. The Montrealer was enroute from Washington to Montreal

The Washingtonian was derailed by a broken journal here a year ago.

Health

Is the most sought for blessing in the world today. The wise individual does not wait until sickness is upon him before determining the cause (any factor tending to produce disease should be removed). Misaligned vertebrae may exist for a long time without producing noticeable symptoms. The adjustments I give will prevent disease as effectively as it will remove disease,—by removing the cause. I am a three-year Palmer graduate and established at 88 Green street to give you health service if you want it.

RUST—puts ordinary plumbing out of commission. Causes your big plumbing expense bills.

Brass Plumbing Never Needs Repairs

You don't require proof that water and air rust iron and steel. Also, you know that rust eats holes into and destroys the usefulness of ordinary iron and steel pots, pans and kettles.

Ordinary plumbing pipe, thicker than kitchen utensils, lasts a little longer. But in a few years it too rusts into holes and has to be ripped out and replaced with new.

Stop in with your last year's plumbing repair bills. Let's get together. I will show you how the original cost of iron and one or two years' repair charges amount to more than Brass Plumbing would cost—show you how to save quite a bit of money.

I will figure your plumbing in Brass. As you know, Brass never rusts. Good Brass plumbing and fixtures will last as long as your house stands.

Let's get together—today!

Coughlin to Be New City Judge

Mayor Morris Block has appointed Attorney Thomas F. Coughlin special city judge to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge Robert G. Groves which is effective May 1. Mr. Coughlin is one of the prominent younger members of the Ulster County Bar and his appointment will meet with approval.

It is understood that Mr. Coughlin will likely be the Democratic candidate for city judge this fall as Judge Harry E. Schirick has stated that he was not a candidate to succeed himself.

After the first of the month Judge Groves will resume practice in city court which he was forced to suspend during the time he was acting as special city judge.

Cop Turns Artist And Wins Success

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Greenwich Village, N. Y., April 29.—This quaint little island-like village, entire surrounded by the vast metropolis of New York city, is very proud of another one of its home-town boys who has made good in the big town.

He is Emile Branchard, policeman-artist, and he has just achieved that fond dream of all artists, a "one-man show," and on upper Fifth avenue, where the millionaires live, too.

In the days when O. Henry roamed restlessly through this village he could have put Emile in a book, had he known him. But in those days Emile was guarding one end of the Manhattan Bridge that spans the East River.

By day Emile guarded the bridge, but by night he painted pictures of trees. They were dream pictures, for Emile had never been in the country where it is necessary to go to find the kind of trees that God makes. Emile's apologetic models were the gaunt stalks that struggle for existence in Washington Square.

Little to Inspire.

Emile was born and reared in MacDougal street. There is little in MacDougal street to inspire an artist. There is a great deal to discourage one. MacDougal street is a cross-section of rattling, clattering elevated railroads; high, unkempt and gloomy tenements—firemen call them "the undertakers' delight"—and pavements crowded with untidy, noisy children and pushcart peddlers; out of innumerable grimy windows lean young and old wives looking for happiness.

When he was a boy Emile did not see this unwholesome picture. He was visualizing pictures of pleasant meadows and shady groves.

Emile painted in the darkness of the basement, and his work was a dark secret. Only his elderly, thrifty French mother, who rented rooms, knew what he was doing; and she did not think he would amount to much.

A young woman lodger went to the basement one day to get a bucket of coal. She came upon Emile at work before his easel. Emile could chase a mad dog, stop a runaway horse, or brave a bandit's bullet; but this was the most embarrassing moment of his life.

Showed Promise.

The young woman saw something in Emile's work that he could not see. She saw promise, being somewhat of an artist herself. She tricked Emile into carrying some of her own paintings to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where the Society of Independent Artists was to hold an exhibition. Once there she brought forth two of his pictures which she had taken from his basement—paintings hardly larger than a post card. After considerable persuasion, Emile consented to having them hung.

These two tiny paintings were the sensation of the exhibition. An art dealer called on Emile and gave him a terrible shock; he bought a number of Emile's pictures for real money. And Emile immediately went forth and paid the money down on a little farm that has trees and hills and a brook and is near Vincent Astor's estate at Red Hook, N. Y.

A fitting climax for this story would be the announcement that Emile and the young woman who discovered him are going to be married. It so happens, however, that each is in love with someone else.

LARGE CROWD AT ZION CHURCH FAIR

The annual fair of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church was opened Tuesday night. Everything was in readiness. The various booths are artistically decorated with marked improvement over last year. The fancy table, apron, candy, cake, supper, grocery, fishing pond, peanut, etc. all speak for themselves. The opening night was well attended and many articles were sold. The ice cream and supper table led in the receipts of the evening. This evening will be men's night on the program. Thursday evening a special chicken supper will be served at 6 o'clock. Friday evening fish supper.

VON HINDENBURG DEALS BLOW TO PLUM-SEEKERS.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Hanover, Germany, April 29.—President-elect Von Hindenburg dealt a shock to all plum-seekers by a terse announcement today:

"From now on, I no longer know the Reichsbloc."

The Reichsbloc was the consolidation of conservative parties which nominated him for the presidency. The field marshal added:

"From today I know no parties, no opposition. I only know the German people as a whole. All my strength and striving belong to the nation as such."

Dawes Plan Will Be Fulfilled

Chancellor Luther Tells German Association of Commerce and Industry—Expect Program of Future in Tonight's Address.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, April 29.—Chancellor Luther, head of the cabinet which will continue in office after Hindenburg becomes president, did his part to allay suspicion abroad in outlining a program of peace and reconstruction in an address today. Speaking to the Association of Commerce and Industry he said Germany would continue to fulfill the provisions of the Dawes plan.

He urged evacuation of the Ruhr and invited a discussion of a security pact in which Germany would participate.

An overshadowing fear is that the field marshal will be susceptible to the influences of the junkers and militarist. International News service is able to state on the best authority that if General Von Ludendorff should offer his advice on any subject, Hindenburg would thank him politely, then proceed to do exactly the contrary.

Great as is Hindenburg's admiration for Ludendorff as a soldier, he has absolutely no respect for him as a politician or "statesman." Since the armistice, Hindenburg repeatedly has begged Ludendorff to keep his hands off politics.

The last straw was the futile "beer cellar putsch" which brought Ludendorff the public censure of the field marshal.

The chancellor will make another speech tonight, which was expected to contain the most important points of the government's future program, which it was understood received the sanction of Hindenburg at his conference with Luther at Hannover.

It was rumored that the president-elect would issue a proclamation on the day of his inauguration.

In the afternoon speech, Luther dealt with European problems faced by the Hindenburg administration.

"Considerable economic reconstruction on the basis of stable currency and the Dawes plan already has been recorded," he said. "But we are still far from normalcy. Stability of our currency is absolutely safeguarded.

"We have made our position clear and distinct," he continued. "Germany wants to assist in the work of removing international political tension. We adhere to this wish.

"Politics and economics are indissolubly linked. The world is realizing that economic recovery depends on the solution of international problems. All peoples are yearning for the removal of uncertainty and the lack of clarity that is hovering over Europe as the result of big political issues.

"The very fact that there is a problem of allied evacuation represents not progress, but regression. For more than three and a half months we have waited vainly for evacuation of the Cologne zone. We have repeatedly pointed out it is untenable to accuse us of treaty violations and impose reprisals on us without producing the proof and giving us a chance to disprove or discuss.

"Evacuation is not only a German problem, but the whole European situation ails by this failure of evacuation."

Luther started his speech by inviting cooperation of the industrialists who were his audience to insure social, moral and political progress in Germany. He appealed to the workers to assist in the face of hard facts by unity within their ranks.

COMMUNIST SUSPECTS ARRESTED IN NAPLES

Soap Bubble as Eye Test

The tiniest things which the human eye can see are the black spots and patches sometimes visible in soap bubbles, said Sir William Bragg, lecturing recently on "Rays and Soap Films" at the Royal Institution, reports the New York World.

The rainbow-colored soap films are, therefore, not the tiniest things the human eye can detect. The black areas are so thin that if the soap bubbles could be magnified to the size of the earth and the thickness of the enveloping film increased in proportion the film would then be only the thickness of a sheet of glass.

Nothing to Say In Diamond Case

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., April 29.—Governor Smith left for New York this afternoon without making public any statement in the appeal for executive clemency for Morris and Joseph Diamond and John Farina, scheduled to die in the electric chair tomorrow night for the slaying of two Brooklyn bank messengers.

"I have nothing to say about the Diamond case" was all the governor would say when he reached the executive chamber shortly before 1 o'clock.

It was persistently reported at the capitol, however, that the governor would not interfere.

The governor will be away from the capitol about three weeks. He expects to spend most of the time in New York.

"I think I am entitled to a little rest but I don't know just where I am going to get it," he said.

WILL OF LEONA YOUNG ADMITTED TO PROBATE

The last will and testament of Leona Isabel Young, of the town of Rochester, has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Kaufman. It is dated the 24th of April, 1924, was drawn by Judge Clearwater, and is witnessed by the judge, Grace Newkirk Kirk and Elsie A. Boyce. It directs the payment of debts and funeral expenses, bequeaths to her husband, George D. Young, $500 in event he survive the admission of the will to probate, provides that in event she leave a child or children surviving the admission of the will to probate it, or they are to receive $500, and devises and bequeaths the residue of her estate to her mother, Mary E. Quick, making her mother sold executrix. Mrs. Young was the daughter of the late Luther Quick, in his lifetime a prominent resident of the town of Rochester, who lived at Whitfield, in that town. He was a well known figure in Kingston, being especially active in the affairs of the Republican party, and repeatedly representing his town in Republican county and assembly conventions. For several years, he was an assistant appraiser of the Port of New York; resigning from position, he took up the raising of poultry at his place in Whitfield, in which he was eminently successful. Mrs. Young was married on the first day of December, 1923. A girl baby was born to her at the Benedictine Hospital in this city, on the 24th of October, 1924. She died on the 13th day of November, 1924, and the baby died on the 29th of November, 1924. The estate consists of about $2,400 personal and an interest in the farm devised to her by her father, subject to her mother's dower's right. Frank W. Brooks represented George Young, the husband, in the probate proceedings. Judge Clearwater is counsel for the executrix.

NAUTCH GIRL RELATES HER TRAGIC CHAPTERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Bombay, India, April 29.—Mumtaz Begum, beautiful Nautch girl, unfolded tragic chapters of her life as the protege of the Maharajah of Indore when she took the stand today at the trial of the nine officials charged with having slain the rich young merchant with whom she took refuge and who mutilated her with knives.

"I wanted to leave the Maharajah because of the death of my child," said Mumtaz. "A girl baby was born to me, but the nurse killed it."

Mumtaz said she did not tell the Maharajah she wanted to leave. When she escaped she soon became the protege of Abdir Kadir Bawla, a Bombay merchant.

"I was happy with Bawla," she testified.

While she was with the Maharajah she was virtually a prisoner she asserted. The Maharajah, she testified, told her she might go anywhere she wanted but that he did not mean it.

At the conclusion of her testimony she was subjected to a harsh cross-examination and held her own against the verbal volleys of defense counsel.

Mumtaz said Bawla first gave her an allowance of 1,000 rupees a month, but later made no fixed allowance, and gave her all she wanted. In reply to questions, she said she did not want to leave Indore because she wasn't given food or clothing, but her reason for wishing to escape was because of the alleged murder of her child.

ASK MURDER INDICTMENT AGAINST MISS SAGE

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Donio, of Passaic county, said today that he planned to go before the grand jury tomorrow to ask a murder indictment against Miss Mildred "Babe" Sage, 22, who confessed having shot to death Samuel Cantelmo, her lover, in her Little Falls, N. J., tea room.

Miss Sage declared she was "not sorry" for having killed Cantelmo and said he often had beaten her.

Change of Name.

Thatcher Furnace Company has outgrown its name. When the company was incorporated many years ago, it made only warm air furnaces. Then later on we added coal and gas ranges, steam and hot water boilers, etc. While the furnace end of the business has been very successful and is at present enjoying the greatest prosperity—the boiler and range production has overtaken it, so the title Thatcher Furnace Company did not really represent the large and diversified output of the company. Therefore, we have eliminated the word furnace and simplified the name by changing it to the Thatcher Company. There is no change in the stockholders, directors, officers and management.

Tagging Major League Bases

The Tigers contrived to lose a ball game to the Browns, 5 to 2, in spite of the fact that Davis walked ten, hit another and committed a balk. It was the Tigers's seventh straight defeat and Sisler's fourteenth straight game in which he was hit safely.

Alexander had nothing but the general idea and the Reds won in a canter from the Cubs, 9 to 3, Rixey left-handing the opposition silly.

Home runs by Meusel and Snyder were wasted on the desert air when Barnes collapsed in the seventh and the Phils pounded their way to a 7 to 5 decision over the Giants.

Ohle laid over the White Sox like a coat of enamel and the Indians pulled out a 3 to 2 verdict.

Ferguson, Fuhr and Fullerton were fondled to a frazzle by the Senators and the Red Sox finished second with their usual ease, 9 to 2.

The Pirates climbed aboard Rhem and Sherdel in the early innings and with Morrison pitching well at all times, the Cardinals sustained their fifth straight defeat 7 to 3.

EAGLES DEFEATED NO. 2 SCHOOL 23 TO 7.

The Victory Eagles again broke into the winning column by submerging Public School No. 2 to the tune of 23-7. Gorman clouted a home run in the sixth inning. The hitting of Hafer and Fitzgerald, of the Eagles, featured the game. The battery for the loser was Smith, pitcher, and Speigel, catcher.

The lineup of the winner was H. Houghtaling, ss; V. Fischer, p & 3b; Fitzgerald, 1b; Hafer, p & 3b; Kruger, 2b; Gorman, lf; J. Houghtaling, c; Murphy, cf; Sickler, rf.

The Eagles would like to hear from the following teams: School No. 3, Brownies, P. C. J., and Lenahan's Sluggers; also from any team between the ages 14-16. Sunday afternoon the Eagles will travel to East Kingston to meet a team representing that place. The game will start at 2:30.

Dundee Was Outclassed.

Washington, April 29.—Johnny Dundee, the battle scarred veteran of a thousand ring fights, met one of his rare defeats before the National Sporting Club here last night. He was outclassed and outfought by Honey Boy Finnegan of Boston. The Boston boy took every round, according to some ring judges, while while others gave him eight out of ten.

Bureau of Printing

On June 30, 1878, congress appropriated $300,000 for the purchase of the site at Fourteenth and B streets, Southwest, and for the erection of the bureau of engraving and printing. The building was completed and occupied July 1, 1880. In 1891 a wing was added to the southwest end and in 1904 a wing was added to the west end. Congress appropriated funds for the new building in 1907. This was completed and occupied in 1914.

Roser Will Wear Home Run Crown

Is Belief of Baltimore International League Team — Former Pitcher Now Outfielder Is Riding Ball Out of Park With Regularity.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Baltimore, Md., April 29.—The possibility of Baltimore winning another International League flag isn't causing much excitement hereabouts. The Birds have won so many it has become a habit. Here's the big question from a local point of view:

Is Jack Dunn developing another "Home Run King" to battle for Babe Ruth's crown?

The season is early yet, but Dunn's new star, Jack Roser, has shown enough in the first few games to convince local fans he is at least destined to be a good pretender to the Babe's throne. In fact, Roser has shown so much that Dunn has been influenced to release Merwin Jacobson, a real slugger and a veteran of six years' standing, to Jersey City to make way for his sensational recruit.

Home Run Expert.

Heralded as the home run expert of the minors because of his record with Worcester in the Eastern League last year, Roser confounded the critics by living up to his reputation the first day he arrived at the Birds' training camp at Eustis, Fla. He banged the ball hard that day, and he has been doing it ever since.

Roser's record as a fence buster during the spring exhibition games convinced the Oriole management it would be a mistake not to include him in the regular lineup when the season opened. The first series of games with Toronto confirmed this opinion. In four games Jack met the ball for three circuit clouts, every one of them a real smash.

John Joseph Roser, to give him his real title, has much more than a Baltimore uniform to make him resemble the great American Sultan of Swat. Like Ruth he started his career as a pitcher—and a lefty at that. Following the Babe's lead, he is now an accredited outfielder, mostly feared for his ability to swing a bat from the portside of the platter.

Texas Leaguer.

Jack got his start in organized baseball several years ago with the Mineral Spring Club, of the Texas League. Then he tried his hand at independent ball for a year or two around Kentucky and Tennessee before hooking on with the St. Petersburg Club, of the Florida State League, where the Boston Braves discovered him.

After a brief career with the Braves, Roser was sent to Worcester, in the Eastern League, in 1922, where he remained until Jack Dunn took him under his wing. A glance at Roser's record would indicate Dunn wasn't taking such a long chance when he signed him on.

During the 1923 season Roser smashed out eighteen homers and batted for .313. Last year he smashed out thirty-eight homers and batted for .330.

Whether he maintains the pace this year remains to be seen, but at least he has accomplished one thing. He has won the place made vacant by the sale of "Lefty" Groves to the Athletics, as the hero of local fandom.

Yankees Still Miss the "Babe"

Ruth Expected To Be Out of Game Until Middle of Season—Yanks Are Six Games Behind Senators and are Still Slipping.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 29.—In spite of assurances to the contrary, it became evident today that the New York Yankees will not have the privilege of Babe Ruth's daily society until well on toward the middle of the current American League season, if then. This fact was made apparent when Dr. Edward King, his personal physician, declared that Ruth would not be able to leave the hospital for three weeks or a month, confirming the general suspicion that his illness is more serious than optimistic reports from his bedside would seem to indicate.

After leaving the hospital, Ruth must undergo a period of convalescence before resuming an active career on the ball field, the physician said. The middle of June or later was then set as the date of Ruth's probable return to the diamond.

"It all depends on how quickly the patient recovers his strength," Dr. King said. "Ruth has always recuperated quickly from his various illnesses and I think he will do so in the present instance. However, he has been quite a sick man and we will take no chances."

The doctor denied reports that Ruth was suffering from a malady that might demand frequent attention from time to time in the years to come.

"Ruth's trouble, as I have stated before, was merely a severe attack of influenza, aggravated by a run-down condition," the physician stated. "Later, abscesses developed, necessitating an operation. This set back the patient's recovery by several weeks."

This latest development means that the Yankees must undertake an important western trip without the services of the great man, and a glance at the standing of the clubs is sufficient to convince any one that they need him now as they never did before. For some reason, the Yanks have taken Ruth's loss more to heart than on previous occasions and have folded up like a portable tent.

In 1922 they played better ball without Ruth and Meusel for the first six weeks of the season than they did after the return of the two stars. This time, they have simply collapsed all over the situation, probably because they haven't enjoyed the pitching they had several years ago.

They are now six full games behind the Senators, and New York is beginning to fear the worst. It has good reason for so doing. The club is three years older than it was when Ruth and Meusel were sent out to grass by Judge Landis. Its five-star pitching staff is no more and Everett Scott at short stop will soon be hobbling about the garden at a nearby veteran's home.

The Yankees are not a ball club to stake a prospective champion to a six game lead and get away with it.

ALL STARS TRIMMED ARTISTIC NINE 8 TO 0.

Monday evening the All Stars gave the Artistics a trimming on the Athletic Field, 8-0. Fitzgerald, twirling for Cragan's men, had nine strikeouts while the same number of hits were being made off of him.

Dougherty, of the Artistics, was the only man to get a hit off the three All Star twirlers, being Cragan, Stoudt and McDaniels. Cragan had four strikeouts to his credit in three innings, while Stoudt had one hit and two strikeouts in two innings. McDaniels, who last year was with Jeff Teserau's Bears of the Bronx, had two strikeouts in his stay in the box. All three pitchers were in tip-top form. Shikey was on the receiving end and held it up in his usual good manner.

The local club with its snappy infield and heavy hitting outfield is sure to give the best clubs throughout this section plenty of trouble this summer. The All Star management would like to book up with some other club for Friday night of this week, also two games for next week.
